Anderson, 1969 Proceedings of the IRE, 1924 Proceedings of the Institute of Radio Engineers Institute of Radio Engineers, 1924 The Living Age, 1916 ESSA Technical Report NES-1, 1974 Society, Power, and Land in Northeastern Zimbabwe, ca. 1560-1960 Admire Mseba, 2024-11-12 A little over two decades ago Zimbabwe undertook its Fast Track Land Reform Programme Critics saw it as nothing more than an assault on human and property rights for political expedience by a ruling elite that was fast losing its power In contrast those sympathetic to the land reform program saw it as fundamental to the righting of colonialism's historical wrongs Yet rural displacements at the hands of state actors or of those closely connected to them continue As in the past the continuing land conflicts are mostly understood as the result of the actions of an authoritarian state that exploits its control of land for the political and economic benefit of those who inhabit it These explanations share one thing in common each understands the country's perpetual land questions in terms of the actions or inactions of the colonial or the postcolonial state This book refocuses attention on how regimes of power rooted in kinship gender generation and status have individually and in combination informed access to land in precolonial northeastern Zimbabwe It then examines how these regimes of power interacted with colonial policies to inform the African experience in colonial Zimbabwe Further the book places land and the ability to ensure its fecundity at the center of the making and moderation of precolonial political power and how this power was impacted by the imposition of colonial rule Tracing the dynamics of land and power from precolonial times together with their entanglement with colonial policies is important for this relationship is almost always neglected by both scholars and policymakers drawn to the high drama of colonial and postcolonial politics of land This oversight has real consequences on our understandings of landed inequalities and how they are addressed When Zimbabwe's postcolonial state focused on colonially induced racialized land inequalities its land reform efforts left older forms of landed inequalities based on gender generation and ideas of belonging intact The book which details these inequalities reminds Zimbabweans and others that if the quest for equity espoused in postcolonial land reforms is to be meaningful it must be attentive to both colonially induced inequalities and those enduring disparities that predated were deepened by and outlived colonial rule At the same time Zimbabweans who now live with a postcolonial state that is increasingly centralizing power over land may well learn from past societies creative efforts to limit the authority of their leaders

The Making of Land and the Making of India Nikita Sud, 2020-11-30 What is land and how is it made In this path breaking study of sites in western eastern and southern India Nikita Sud argues that land is not simply the solid surface of the earth It is best understood as a materially and conceptually dynamic realm intimately tied to the social As such land transitions across porous registers of territory property authority the sacred history and memory and contested access and exclusion While states markets and politics in post liberalization India try to make land suitable for growth and development the relationship between the soil and institutions is never straightforward A state attempting to order a layered topography is frequently stretched into shadowy domains of informality and unsanctioned practices A market may be advanced but remains precariously embedded in sociality Politics could challenge the land making of the state and markets It may also effect compromises Attempts at constructing a durable landed order thus reveal our own dis orders In attempting to make the land Sud's intriguing study shows how the land simultaneously makes us
