Media of Reason Matthias Vogel, 2012-11-06 Matthias Vogel challenges the belief dominant in contemporary philosophy that reason is determined solely by our discursive linguistic abilities as communicative beings In his view the medium of language is not the only force of reason Music art and other nonlinguistic forms of communication and understanding are also significant Introducing an expansive theory of mind that accounts for highly sophisticated penetrative media Vogel advances a novel conception of rationality while freeing philosophy from its exclusive attachment to linguistics Vogel's media of reason treats all kinds of understanding and thought propositional and nonpropositional as important to the processes and production of knowledge and thinking By developing an account of rationality grounded in a new conception of media he raises the profile of the prelinguistic and nonlinguistic dimensions of rationality and advances the Enlightenment project buffering it against the postmodern critique that the movement fails to appreciate aesthetic experience Guided by the work of Jürgen Habermas Donald Davidson and a range of media theorists including Marshall McLuhan Vogel rebuilds if he does not remake the relationship among various forms of media books movies newspapers the Internet and television while offering an original and exciting contribution to media theory

Media Events in Web 2.0 China Dr Jian Xu PhD, 2015-12-15 This book is among the first to use a media events framework to examine China's Internet activism and politics and the first study of the transformation of China's media events through the parameter of online activism. The author locates the practices of major modes of online activism in China: shanzhai culture, jamming, citizen journalism, and weiguan-mediated mobilisation into different types of Chinese media events: ritual celebration, natural disaster, political scandal. The contextualised analysis of online activism thus enables exploration of the spatial, temporal, and relational dimensions of Chinese online activism with other social agents such as the Party state, mainstream media, and civil society. Analysis reveals Internet politics in China on three interrelated levels: the individual, the discursive, and the institutional. Contemporary cases rich in empirical research data and interdisciplinary theory demonstrate that the alternative and activist use of the Internet has intervened into and transformed conventional Chinese media events in various types of agents, their agendas, and performances, and the subsequent and corresponding political impact. The Party-market controlled Chinese media events have become more open, contentious, and deliberative in the Web 2.0 era due to the active participation of ordinary Chinese people aided by the Internet.

The New Evolutionary Sociology Jonathan Turner, Richard Machalek, 2018-03-09. For decades, evolutionary analysis was overlooked or altogether ignored by sociologists. Fears and biases persisted nearly a century after Auguste Comte gave the discipline its name, as did concerns that its effect would only reduce sociology to another discipline, whether biology, psychology, or economics. Worse apprehension that the application of evolutionary theory would encourage heightened perceptions of racism, sexism, ethnocentrism, and reductionism pervaded. Turner and Machalek argue instead for a new embrace of biology and evolutionary analysis. Sociology from its very beginnings in the early 19th century has always been concerned with the study of evolution, particularly the transformation of societies from simple to ever more complex forms. By comprehensively reviewing the original ways that sociologists applied evolutionary theory and examining the recent renewal and expansion of these early approaches, the authors confront the challenges posed by biology, neuroscience, and psychology to distinct evolutionary approaches within sociology. They emerge with key theoretical and methodological discoveries that demonstrate the critical and compelling case for a dramatically enriched sociology that incorporates all forms of comparative evolutionary analysis to its canon and study of sociocultural phenomena.

Critical Terms for Media Studies W. J. T. Mitchell, Mark B. N. Hansen, 2010-03-15. Communications philosophy, film and video, digital culture, media studies straddles an astounding array of fields and disciplines and produces a vocabulary that is in equal parts rigorous and intuitive. Critical Terms for Media Studies defines and at times redefines what this new and hybrid area aims to do, illuminating the key concepts behind its liveliest debates and most dynamic topics. Part of a larger conversation that engages culture, technology, and politics, this exciting collection of essays explores our most critical language for dealing with the qualities and modes of contemporary media. Edited by two outstanding scholars in the field, W. J. T. Mitchell and Mark B. N. Hansen, the volume features works by a team of distinguished contributors. These essays, commissioned expressly for this volume, are organized into three interrelated groups: Aesthetics, engages with terms that describe sensory experiences and judgments Technology offers entry into a broad array of technological concepts and Society opens up language describing the systems that allow a medium to function A compelling reference work for the twenty first century and the media that form our experience within it Critical Terms for Media Studies will engage and deepen any reader s knowledge of one of our most important new fields Television Regulation and Media Policy in China Yik-Chan Chin,2016-08-12 Since the late 1990s there has been a crucial and substantial transformation in China s television system involving institutional structural and regulatory changes Unravelling the implications of these changes is vital for understanding the politics of Chinese media policy making and regulation and thus a comprehensive study of this history has never been more essential This book studies the transformation of the policy and regulation of the Chinese television sector within a national political and economic context from 1996 to the present day Taking a historical and sociological approach it engages in the theoretical debates over the nature of the transformation of media in the authoritarian Chinese state the implications of the ruling party s political legitimacy and China s central local conflicts upon television policy making and market structure and the nature of the media modernisation process in a developing country Its case studies include broadcasting systems in Shanghai and Guangdong which demonstrate that varied policies and development strategies have been adopted by television stations reflecting different local circumstances and needs Arguing that rather than being a homogenous entity China has demonstrated substantial local diversity and complex interactions between local national and global media this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Chinese media politics and policy and international communications The Media in Transitional Democracies Katrin Voltmer,2013-07-10 The last quarter of a century has seen an unprecedented wave of democratization around the globe In these transitions from authoritarian rule to a more democratic order the media have played a key role both by facilitating but frequently also inhibiting democratic practices to take root This book provides an accessible and systematic introduction to the media in transitional democracies It analyses the problems that occur when transforming the media into independent institutions that are able to inform citizens and hold governments to account The book covers the following topics normative conceptions of media and democracy the role of the past in the transition process the internet as a new space for democratic change the persistence of political interference in emerging democracies the interlocking power of media markets and political ownership the challenges to journalistic professionalism in post authoritarian contexts the role of the media in divided societies The book takes a global view by exploring the interplay of political and media transitions in different pathways of democratization that have taken place in Eastern Europe Latin America Africa and Asia It will be of interest to advanced students and scholars who want a better understanding of the media outside established Western democracies The book will also be of great value to policymakers and activists who are involved in strengthening the media in transitional democracies

an interdisciplinary discussion of human communication by means of documents e.g. letters Cultural scientists together with researchers from media science and media engineering analyze questions of document modeling including a document's contexts of use on the basis of cultural theory The research also concerns the debate on the material turn in the fields of cultural studies and media studies Looking back on existing work texts on written communication by the philosopher and sociologist Georg Simmel and by an interdisciplinary French group of authors under the pseudonym Roger T P. Dauque are taken as a starting point and presented afresh A look ahead to the future is also attempted Whereas the modeling including technical modeling of documents has to date largely been limited to the description of output forms and specific content the foundations are laid here for including documents contexts of use in models that are grounded in cultural theory

Race/Gender/Class/Media Rebecca Ann Lind, 2023-03-14 The fifth edition of this popular textbook considers diversity in the mass media in three main settings: Audiences, Content, and Production The book brings together 55 readings, the majority newly commissioned for this edition by scholars representing a variety of humanities and social science disciplines Together these readings provide a multifaceted and intersectional look at how race, gender, and class relate to the creation and use of media texts as well as the media texts themselves Designed to be flexible for use in the classroom, the book begins with a detailed introduction to key concepts and presents a contextualizing introduction to each of the three main sections Each reading contains multiple "It's Your Turn" activities to foster student engagement and which can serve as the basis for assignments The book also offers a list of resources: books, articles, films, and websites that are of value to students and instructors This volume is an essential introduction to interdisciplinary studies of race, gender, and class across both digital and legacy media
