Food and Cooking on Early Television in Europe Ana Tominc, 2022-02-14 This collection critically examines the role of food programming on European early television and the impact this might have had on food habits and identities for the European audiences. It foregrounds various food programme genres from travelogue, cooking show, and TV cooking competition to more artistic forms. For the first time, it examines in one place eight European countries from Portugal to Czechoslovakia and Britain to France and Yugoslavia to explore ways in which television contributed to culinary change, demonstrating differences and similarities in which early food programme in Europe shaped and promoted progress, modernity, gender, and national identities in both Eastern and Western Europe. Featuring a number of archival images that illustrate early food programme visually, this collection complements other research into postwar food history, adding a perspective of visual medium that is often neglected. As such, it should be interesting for food and media historians, as well as those interested in European postwar history and culture.

Kelly,2021-12-02 This book tells the story of what happens when an essentially Parisian institution travels and establishes itself in its neighbour s capital city bringing with it French food culture and culinary practices The arrival and evolution of the French restaurant in the British capital is a tale of culinary and cultural exchange and of continuity and change in the development of London s dining out culture Although the main character of this story is the French restaurant this cultural history also necessarily engages with the people who produce purvey purchase and consume that food culture in many different ways and in many different settings in London over a period of some one hundred and fifty years British references to France and to the French are littered with associations with food whether it is desired rejected admired loathed envied disdained from the status of haute cuisine and the restaurants and chefs associated with it to contemporary concerns about food poverty and food waste to dietary habits and the politicisation of food and at every level in between However thinking about the place of the French restaurant in London restaurant and food culture over a long time span in many and varied places and spaces in the capital creates a more nuanced picture than that which may at first seem obvious Food and Culture in the Works of Ford Madox Ford, Gertrude Stein, and Virginia Woolf Nanette O'Brien,Nanette O'Brien,2024 Tracing a line of transatlantic aesthetics and gendered productions of modernism this monograph reveals the centrality of agriculture cookery domestic work and institutional dining to modernist authors
