Reconceiving Women Separating Motherhood From Female Identity:

Reconceiving Women Mardy S. Ireland, 1993 Dr Mardy Ireland defines a place for women outside the parameters of motherhood and gives voice to the significant number of women who are not mothers She draws extensively from interviews with over 100 childless women from various ethnic and educational backgrounds demonstrating the myriad ways they came to view themselves as complete adults without recourse to the traditional defining criteria of motherhood Her work offers all women mothers and non mothers alike a vision of self defined adulthood and a recognition that every woman is the subject of her own life Challenging the assumption of deprivation or deviance that is traditionally applied to childless women in psychological theory and popular culture Dr Ireland reframes childlessness as a concept and lays a groundwork for an expanded view of women s identity and psychic development Using contemporary psychoanalytic theory she reexamines female identity development and presents a positive interpretation of women who for whatever reason are not mothers

Cultural Studies of Science and Technology Maureen McNeil, 2008-01-15 Feminist Cultural Studies of Science and Technology challenges the assumption that science is simply what scientists do say or write it shows the multiple and dispersed makings of science and technology in everyday life and popular culture This first major guide and review of the new field of feminist cultural studies of science and technology provides readers with an accessible introduction to its theories and methods Documenting and analyzing the recent explosion of research which has appeared under the rubric of cultural studies of science and technology it examines the distinctive features of the cultural turn in science studies and traces the contribution feminist scholarship has made to this development Interrogating the theoretical and methodological features it evaluates the significance of this distinctive body of research in the context of concern about public attitudes to science and contentious debates about public understanding of and engagement with science BAD MOTHERS Molly

Ladd-Taylor, Lauri Umansky, 1998 There really are women who are less than good mothers However during the past quarter century the definition of bad mother has changed with changing lifestyles and changes to the family structure Mothers today are blamed for a host of problems Drawing together the work of prominent scholars and journalists and individual cases BAD MOTHERS marks an important contribution to the literature on motherhood What No Baby? Leslie Cannold, 2005-01-01

What No Baby takes us on a journey into the lives of contemporary women who plan to have it all marriage motherhood and work yet have been derailed by reluctant men insatiably demanding jobs and ever climbing expectations of what it takes to be a good mother The Australian Bureau of Statistics predicts that 25% of Australian women who are currently in their reproductive years will never have children Yet respected researcher and ethicist Leslie Cannold argues that women want to mother as much as they ever did What has changed is their willingness to sacrifice everything they've built everything they are to do so Drawing on demographic data social research and insights gained from interviews with women in their 20s 30s and 40s Cannold shows that the easier society makes it for women to combine parenthood and paid work the closer women get to having the number of children they want At the end of the 21st century it is women's freedom to mother that is most at risk Guaranteed to reshape the current debate around declining fertility What No Baby is a must read for everyone concerned about Australia's fertility decline and for women who want to better understand and to solve the social problems keeping them from fulfilling lives in which children play a part

Embryo Gay Becker,2000-12-20 In the first book to examine the industry of reproductive technology from the perspective of the consumer Gay Becker scrutinizes the staggering array of medical options available to women and men with fertility problems and assesses the toll both financial and emotional that the quest for a biological child often exacts from would be parents Becker interviewed hundreds of people over a period of years their stories are presented here in their own words Absorbing informative and in many cases moving these stories address deep seated notions about gender self worth and the cultural ideal of biological parenthood Becker moves beyond people s personal experiences to examine contemporary meanings of technology and the role of consumption in modern life What emerges is a clear view of technology as culture with technology the template on which issues such as gender nature and the body are being rewritten and continuously altered The Elusive Embryo chronicles the history and development of reproductive technology and shows how global forces in consumer culture have contributed to the industry s growth Becker examines how increasing use of reproductive technology has changed ideas about natural pregnancy and birth Discussing topics such as in vitro fertilization how men and women naturalize the use of a donor and what happens when new reproductive technologies don t work Becker shows how the experience of infertility has become increasingly politicized as potential parents confront the powerful forces that shape this industry The Elusive Embryo is accessible well written and well documented It will be an invaluable resource for people using or considering new reproductive technologies as well as for social scientists and health professionals Childfree across the Disciplines Davinia Thornley,2022-04-15 Recently childfree people have been foregrounded in mainstream media More than seven percent of Western women choose to remain childfree and this figure is increasing Being childfree challenges the procreation imperative residing at the center of our hetero normative understandings occupying an uneasy position in relation to simultaneously traditional academic ideologies and prevalent social norms After all as Adi Avivi recognizes if a woman is not a mother the patriarchal social order is in danger This collection engages with these misperceptions about childfree people in media representations demographics historical documents and both psychological and philosophical models Foundational pieces from established experts on the childfree choice Rhonny Dam Laurie Lisle Christopher Clausen and Berenice Fisher appear alongside both activist manifestos and original scholarly work comprehensively brought together Academics and activists in various disciplines and movements also riff on the childfree life its implications its challenges its conversations and its agency all in relation to its inevitability in the 21st century Childfree across the Disciplines unequivocally takes a stance supporting the subversive potential of the childfree choice allowing readers to understand childfreedom as a sense of continuing potential in who or what a person can become Pronatalism

The Childless Revolution Madelyn Cain, 2013-11-22 Whether childless by choice by chance or by happenstance women without children today are alternately pitied and scorned and are rarely asked directly about the reasons for and their comfort with childlessness Asking the right questions Madelyn Cain thoughtfully uncovers the reasons for childlessness from biological to economic and even political and explores the ramifications for both the individual and society Simultaneously compassionate and journalistically curious The Childless Revolution is informed by the stories of over 100 childless or self proclaimed childfree women at long last giving voice to their experience and validating the jumble of emotions most feel about being part of this misunderstood population The first book to put a face on these women who cannot conceive or for reasons as varied as womanhood itself have chosen not to The Childless Revolution dispels fears removes ignorance and corrects misconceptions about the ever growing group of women without children in our midst

Conflict Elisabeth Badinter, 2012-04-24 In this explosive new book acclaimed French author Elisabeth Badinter attacks a most unlikely force undermining women's equality liberal motherhood in thrall to all that is natural Attachment parenting co sleeping and on demand breastfeeding these hallmarks of contemporary motherhood have succeeded in tethering women to the home and family to an extent not seen since the 1950s The taboos surrounding epidurals formula and disposable diapers anything that distracts a mother's attention from her offspring have turned child rearing into a singularly regressive force In sharp engaging prose Badinter names a reactionary shift that has been intensely felt but never clearly articulated until now A bestseller in Europe The Conflict is a scathing indictment of a stealthy zealotry that cheats women of their full potential

Mature Unwed Mothers Ruth Linn, 2011-06-28 I have often wondered if the opposition to women's choosing to abort a pregnancy masks a fear of women choosing to have and raise children on their own When a woman separates motherhood from marriage she claims a freedom in the realm of intimate relationships that may be as fundamental as Freedom of Conscience or Freedom of Association Yet we do not usually think about women's decisions concerning motherhood in these terms In a pair of remarkable studies begun in the 1980s Ruth Linn pregnant at the time and married to a medical officer in the Israeli army took the study of moral psychology into two highly controversial arenas of moral action Israeli soldiers who refused to serve in Lebanon and single women who refused to remain childless While conscientious objection to war has long been recognized as an act of moral resistance and courage women who question societal norms and values linking motherhood with marriage are typically dismissed as bad women Rather than approaching these questions in the abstract Linn chose to interview women who made the decision to have and raise children on their own What she found was that in the course of making this decision women came to see themselves as moral resisters In freeing their childbearing capability from men's control they were also freeing their capacity to love The very title of this book Mature Unwed Mothers calls us to think about what we mean by maturity on the part of mothers

Others Like Me Nicole Louie, 2024-11-05 In a world that expects all women to become mothers what happens to those who circumvent motherhood Now and throughout history women without children have been misunderstood and even vilified for not conforming to the prescriptive path of daughter wife mother whether by choice circumstance or ambivalence But with an increasing number of people choosing to forego children Nicole Louie knew she was not alone As she recounts her own journey toward embracing a life without children Louie weaves in stories from the women around the world she found in her search for community and guidance from their pasts to their presents to their hopes for the future Others Like Me is a candid tender and distinctive exploration of how fourteen women found fulfillment and flourished outside of motherhood upending stereotypes and offering reassurance and recognition down a much treaded but lesser known track

Women's Sexuality Across the Life Span Judith C. Daniluk, 2003-06-09 Moving beyond a traditional focus on sexual functioning this book emphasizes the complex interaction of psychological social cultural and biological influences on women's sense of themselves as sexual beings Written for practitioners and educators its goal is to challenge contradictory messages and meanings that cause many women to feel disconnected from their bodies and from their needs and desires Themes explored include the development of sexual awareness and sexuality in childhood and adolescence the critical sexual choices of young adulthood and the multiple transitions characterizing the middle and later years of life The book features creative exercises and interventions to help girls and women construct more affirming sexual meanings
