Sources for English Local History W. B. Stephens, 1981-09-10 English local and regional history has attracted widespread attention in the last twenty five to thirty years Its study has expanded at undergraduate and postgraduate levels in universities polytechnics and at other institutions of higher education and it has long retained its popularity as a subject for adult education classes In schools the teaching of local history in its own right and as an ingredient of general history environmental studies and local and social studies is well established and commonly involves the use of original sources The expansion of genealogical studies into the wider area of family history has involved many individuals and groups in the investigation of the local conditions which existed where former generations lived and in this pursuit increasing use of local records has been made Many who seek to involve themselves in this work however find that they are ill equipped in the knowledge of what sources exist where they are to be found or what techniques are suitable in making the best use of them

British Archives Janet Foster, Julia Sheppard, 1995-09-27 Since it was first published in 1982 British Archives has established itself as the premier reference work to holdings of archives and manuscript collections throughout the UK The 3rd edition has been extensively revised and enlarged with more than 150 new entries further widening the range of the book Entries are structured to show the archives of the organisation as distinct from deposited collections and significant non manuscript material and additional details of fax number and conservation provision are included for the first time All the existing entries have been significantly updated together with the select bibliography and list of useful addresses of various organisations involved in the care and custody of archives The introduction provides an invaluable guide to researchers using archives including a summary of the relevant legislation and a detailed description of the usual holdings of county and other local authority record offices
