Romeiras, 2020-12-03 African ecosystems comprise a wealthy repository of biodiversity with a high proportion of native and endemic plant species which makes them biologically unique and providers of a wide range of ecosystem services A large part of African populations in both rural and urban areas depend on plants for their survival and welfare but many ecosystems are being degraded mostly due to the growing impacts of climate change and other anthropogenic actions and environmental problems

Loss of habitat and biodiversity affects livelihoods water supply and food security and reduces the resilience of ecosystems in the African continent The knowledge about the great African plant and ecosystem diversity and the structure composition and processes involved in vegetation dynamics is crucial to promote their sustainable use and to preserve one of the most understudied regions in the world This Special Issue aimed to gather contributions that update and improve such knowledge

History of Astronomy David Leverington, 2012-12-06 The history of astronomy is like most history a multidimensional story and when writing about a specific period the author has to decide how to handle all the developments of earlier times in order to set the scene I have done this by starting most chapters of the book with a summary of astronomical knowledge at the beginning of our chosen period together with a brief review of how such knowledge had been gained This story is not only interesting in itself but it will also assist those readers that would appreciate a brief reminder of some of the basic elements of astronomy It is also necessary to decide when to start our history Should it be the year 1900 or 1890 or should it be linked to some key development or investigation e g the discovery of the electron by J J Thomson in 1897 or the discovery of spectroscopic binary stars by Pickering and Vogel independently in 1889 or maybe the year 1890 in which Thomas Edison tried unsuccessfully to detect radio waves from the Sun and Johannes Rydberg published his formula for atomic spectra I have in fact decided to start this history at about 1890 as it was the year of publication of the Draper Memorial Catalogue of stellar spectra which together with its updates provided essential data for the understanding of stellar spectra until well into the twentieth century This date also gives a clear hundred years up to the present
