Revisiting Children's Rights 10 Years Of The Un Convention On The Rights Of The Child:

Do African Children Have Rights? Stephen Nmeregini Achiliu, 2010 The United Nations 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child CRC constitutes a landmark in the development of international human rights law and reflects an historic turn in universal thinking about children and their rights Many children in Africa today face the future with a deep sense of uncertainty and foreboding Many have no hope of education and the issues of child trafficking sexual exploitation and child labour reflect a profound crisis of the family The current socio economic situation has radically changed the world views and the life expectations of the African child This book attempts to respond to some of the questions that could be asked to what extent have the provisions of the CRC been implemented in the national legislations of African States What effect have they had on children in Africa What mechanisms exist to prevent and sanction rights abusers Are children's rights in Africa reality or simply rhetoric

What Is Right for Children? Karen Worthington, 2016-02-11 Combining feminist legal theory with international human rights concepts this book examines the presence participation and treatment of children in a variety of contexts Specifically through comparing legal developments in the US with legal developments in countries where the views that children are separate from their families and potentially in need of state protection are more widely accepted The authors address the role of religion in shaping attitudes about parental rights in the US with particular emphasis upon the fundamentalist belief in natural lines of familial authority Such beliefs have provoked powerful resistance in the US to human rights approaches that view the child as an independent rights holder and the state as obligated to provide services and protections that are distinctly child centred Calling for a rebalancing of relationships within the US family to become more consistent with emerging human rights norms this collection contains both theoretical debates about and practical approaches to granting positive rights to children

Children and the European Union Helen Stalford, 2012-08-14 This book examines in detail the status of children in the EU Drawing on a range of disciplinary perspectives including the sociology of childhood and human rights discourse it offers a critical analysis of the legal and policy framework underpinning EU children s rights across a range of areas including family law education immigration and child protection Traditionally children s rights at this level have been articulated primarily in the context of the free movement of persons provisions inevitably restricting entitlement to migrant children of EU nationality In the past decade however innovative interpretations of EU law by the Court of Justice coupled with important constitutional developments have prompted the development of a much more robust children s rights agenda This culminated in the incorporation of a more explicit reference to children s rights in the Lisbon Treaty followed by the Commission s launch in February 2011 of a dedicated EU Agenda to promote and safeguard the rights of the child The analysis presented in this book therefore comes at a pivotal point in the history of EU children s rights providing a detailed and critical overview of a range of substantive areas and making an important contribution to international children s rights studies

Child Security in Asia Cecilia Jacob, 2013-08-15 Millions of children around the world are affected by conflict and the enduring aftermath of war in post conflict societies This book reflects on the implications of children s insecurity for governments and the international humanitarian community by drawing on original field research in post conflict Cambodia and in Burma's eastern conflict zones. The book examines the way that politics and discourses of security and child protection have further marginalised rather than enhanced the protection of children. In Cambodia threats from trafficking, exploitative labour and high levels of domestic and social violence challenge the government and the international humanitarian community to respond to the new human security terrain that is the legacy of three decades of political violence. Burma has endured over 60 years of insurgency and civil conflict in ethnic minority states significantly affecting children who are recruited into armies, killed, maimed or tortured and displaced. Analysing the theoretical and practical challenges faced in addressing children's security in global politics, the book offers a novel framework for responding to the politics of protection that is at the heart of this crucial issue. It is a useful contribution to studies on Asian Politics and International Relations and Security.
