Macroeconomic Models and Controversies Giuseppe Chirichiello, 1994-01-01 This book provides an introduction to major topics in macroeconomic theory and offers the readers three models for comparing different models The first model is a mathematical reformulation of Say's Law which clarifies the Keynes versus classics debate from a new point of view The second model uses income velocity of money circulation as a behavioural function in accordance with the Friedman tradition This makes it possible to translate the language of the Keynesian model into the language of monetarism and thus directly compare the major schools of the 1970s The third model is the use of the Phillips curve to represent the functioning of the labour market This makes it possible to evaluate the fundamentals of the new classical macroeconomics The book also deals with the macroeconomics of rationing equilibria and offers extensions towards the aggregate demand supply approach under uncertainty introduced in Chapter 1 is motivated and discussed by applications to consumption theory with particular attention to empirical implementation Chapter 2 focuses on continuous time optimization techniques and discusses the relevant insights in the context of partial equilibrium investment models Chapter 3 revisits many of the previous chapters formal derivations with applications to dynamic labour demand in comparison to optimal investment models and characterizes labor market equilibrium when not only individual firms labor demand but also individual labor supply by workers is subject to adjustment costs Chapter 4 proposes broader applications of methods introduced in the previous chapters and studies continuous time equilibrium dynamics of representative agent economies featuring both consumption and investment choices with applications to long run growth frameworks of analysis Chapter 5 illustrates the role of decentralized trading in determining aggregate equilibria and characterizes aggregate labor market dynamics in the presence of frictional unemployment Chapters 4 and 5 pay particular attention to strategic interactions and externalities even when each agent correctly solves his or her individual dynamic problem modern microfounded macroeconomic models recognize that macroeconomic equilibrium need not have unambiguously desirable properties By bridging the gap between undergraduate economics and modern microfounded macroeconomic research this book will be of interest to graduate students in economics and as a technical reference for economic researchers

The Endogenization of Government Behaviour in Macroeconomic Models Bern C.J. van Velthoven, 2012-12-06 In chapter 2 we concluded that the present public choice and marxist approaches to the study of political processes as far as relevant for the analysis of economic policy making are unsatisfactory for reasons of incoherency insufficient empirical support and lack of specificity It was suggested that a different approach to the subject might be fruitful To that purpose we now turn our attention to the so called interest function approach to the study of politico economic phenomena that has been developed by Van Winden 1983 See also Van Winden 1987 Van Velthoven and Van Winden 1986 Without paying too much attention to the specific conduct of and intricate relationships between voters politicians bureaucrats and interest groups the interest function approach intends to combine valuable elements of the marxist and public choice analyses According to Van Winden 1983 p 12 this means that in studying the interaction between state and private sector attention should be paid to social classes and the impact of class power relationships on political and economic processes the way that social power structures involving the real control over state activities are maintained or altered the relative autonomy of political processes involving the state and its consequences for as well as its dependence on economic processes individual motivations the possibility of mathematical formalization Section 3 2 will give a general introduction to the concepts and the line of argument of the interest function approach
