Nurses at the Front Mary Borden, Ellen Newbold La Motte, 2001 Publishes selections from the memoirs of Ellen N La Motte Mary Borden two of the best known American nurses who wrote about their experiences working in the same field hospital on the Western Front during World War I Simultaneous hardcover Nurse Writers of the Great War Christine E. Hallett, 2016-02-15 The First World War was the first total war Its industrial weaponry damaged millions of men and drove whole armies underground into dangerously unhealthy trenches Many were killed Many more suffered terrible life threatening injuries wound infections such as gas gangrene and tetanus exposure to extremes of temperature emotional trauma and systemic disease In an effort to alleviate this suffering tens of thousands of women volunteered to serve as nurses Of these some were experienced professionals while others had undergone only minimal training But regardless of their preparation they would all gain a unique understanding of the conditions of industrial warfare Until recently their contributions both to the saving of lives and to our understanding of warfare have remained largely hidden from view By combining biographical research with textual analysis Nurse writers of the great war opens a window onto their insights into the nature of nursing and the impact of warfare An electronic edition of this book is freely available under a Creative Commons CC BY NC ND licence First World War Nursing Alison S. Abreu,2012-02-28 Women s participation in wars either directly or indirectly has been the study object of war narratives since the Classical Age This book aims to analyze women s significant role to the construction of cultural memory and how women s representations have evolved from myth since Homer until the early twentieth century when the First War was declared to the assumption of silent victims in wartime and finally to the condition of proactive members of a much dreamed society with equal opportunities for everyone This book also addresses more specifically how women war narratives of the First World War reflect upon the war trauma which brought equally disastrous consequences for women men and children and how the War contributed to the reconfiguration of women s social roles Singing, Soldiering, and Sheet Music in America during the First World War

Christina Gier,2016-10-19 An advertisement in the sheet music of the song Goodbye Broadway Hello France 1917 announces Music will help win the war This ad hits upon an American sentiment expressed not just in advertising but heard from other sectors of society during the American engagement in the First World War It was an idea both imagined and practiced from military culture to sheet music writers about the power of music to help create a strong military and national community in the face of the conflict it appears straightforward Nevertheless the published sheet music in addition to discourse about gender soldiering and music evince a more complex picture of society This book presents a study of sheet music and military singing practices in America during the First World War that critically situates them in the social discourses including issues of segregation and suffrage and the historical context of the war The transfer of musical styles between the civilian and military realm was fluid because so many men were enlisted from homes with the sheet music while they were also singing songs in their military training Close musical analysis brings the meaningful musical and lyrical expressions of this time period to the forefront of our understanding of soldier and civilian music making at this time Place and Practice in Canadian Nursing History

For No Reason at All Jeffrey A. Hinkelman, 2022-02-04 The years following the signing of the Armistice saw a transformation of traditional attitudes regarding military conflict as America attempted to digest the enormity and futility of the First World War During these years popular film culture in the United States created new ways of addressing the impact of the war on both individuals and society Filmmakers with direct experience of combat created works that promoted their own ideas about the depiction of wartime service ideas that frequently conflicted with established heroic tropes for the portrayal of warfare on film Those filmmakers spent years modifying existing standards and working through a variety of storytelling options before achieving a consensus regarding the fitting method for rendering war on screen That consensus incorporated facets of the experience of Great War veterans and these countered and undermined previously accepted narrative strategies This process reached its peak during the Pre Code Era of the early 1930s when the initially prevailing narrative would be briefly supplanted by an entirely new approach that questioned the very premises of wartime service Even more significantly the rhetoric of these films argued strongly for an antiwar stance that questioned every aspect of the wartime experience
