Caves have been used in various ways across human society but despite the persistence within popular culture of the iconic caveman deep caves were never used primarily as habitation sites for early humans Rather in both ancient and contemporary contexts caves have served primarily as ritual spaces In Sacred Darkness contributors use archaeological evidence as well as ethnographic studies of modern ritual practices to envision the cave as place of spiritual and ideological power that emerges as a potent venue for ritual practice Covering the ritual use of caves in Europe Asia Australia Africa Mesoamerica and the US Southwest and Eastern woodlands this book brings together case studies by prominent scholars whose research spans from the Paleolithic period to the present day These contributions demonstrate that cave sites are as fruitful as surface contexts in promoting the understanding of both ancient and modern religious beliefs and practices This state of the art survey of ritual cave use will be one of the most valuable resources for understanding the role of caves in studies of religion sacred landscape or cosmology and a must read for any archaeologist interested in caves Krill Cave Olaf H. Prufer,Dana A. Long,Donald J. Metzger,1989 In sharp contrast with the southern and southeastern uplands of Ohio rockshelters are rare in the northern parts of the state Only at Krill Cave has it been possible to reconstruct a temporal sequence from the Archaic through Late Woodland times on the basis of quantitatively appreciable data The results of these excavations carried out in the summers of 1974 and 1975 can best be discussed in terms of what the three major occupations have in common The share commonalities are probably due to the environmental ecological setting in which the occupations occurred The latest number in the series of Kent State Research Papers in Archaeology provides a complete site report of the Krill Cave and categorizes the projectile points and cutting tools used in prehistory by the Indians in what are now the middle and eastern sections of the United States from 12 000 B C to the beginning of the historic period Mr Justice describes over 120 separate types of stone arrowheads and spear points according to period culture and region His detailed drawings show how Native Americans shaped their tools what styles were peculiar to which regions and how the various types can best be identified There are over 485 drawings organized by type cluster and other identifying characteristics The work also includes distribution maps and 111 examples in color The Bridgeport Township Site John M. Posing Questions for a Scientific Archaeology Terry L. Hunt, Carl P. Lipo, Sarah L. Sterling, 2001-06-30 Although many believe that archaeological knowledge consists simply of empirical findings this notion is false data are generated with the guidance of theory or some sense making system acting in its place whether researchers recognize this or not Failure to understand the relationship between theory and the empirical world has led to the many debates and frustrations of contemporary archaeology Despite years of trying the atheoretical empiricist foundations of archaeology have left us little but a history of storytelling and unsatisfying generalizations about historical change and human diversity The present work offers promising directions for building theoretically defensible results by providing well designed case studies that can be used as guides or exemplars Evolutionary theory in at least some form is the foundation for a scientific archaeology that will yield scientific explanations for historical change Pennsylvania Archaeologist, 2007 Woodland Period Research in Kentucky David Pollack, Thomas N. Pigott, 2006 A collection of the last forty years of research on Ohio s caves and rockshelters Caves and Culture seeks to address a number of important problems specifically the use of rockshelters by humans through time and transcontinental continuities It presents new and updated unreported research from such Ohio caves and rockshelters as Stow Rockshelter Stow Peters Cave Ross County Hendricks Cave Wyandotte County and Chesser Cave Athens among others Caves and Culture is primarily focused on the archaeological research of Dr Olaf H. Prufer and his associates as they investigated and explored caves in Ohio since 1964 Spurlock and her co editors report sometimes reclaim and frequently reinterpret data that will be useful to the understanding of Ohio archaeology for decades to come Anyone with interest in local or regional Midwestern or midcontinental prehistory will appreciate this exploration into Ohio s history Ohio Archaeologist, 2001 The Locust Site (33Mu160) Mark F.
