Reaching Women:

How can anticipatory action programming support women? Application of the reach-benefit-empower-transform framework in Nepal and Nigeria Gonzales, Teresa, Kosec, Katrina, Kyle, Jordan, Madero, Ana, Mittrick, Caitlin, Myers, Emily, Quisumbing, Agnes R., Rapadas, Amica, 2024-12-10 As floods increase in frequency and intensity due to climate change anticipatory action AA programs offer a promising approach to mitigate their impacts However there is limited research about how AA programming can address the specific needs of women who often face heightened vulnerabilities during disasters This paper applies the Reach Benefit Empower Transform RBET framework to examine gender dynamics in AA programming through case studies in Nepal and Nigeria two flood prone countries where AA initiatives have been piloted Using data from key informant interviews and focus group discussions with stakeholders including government agencies NGOs local advocacy groups and direct beneficiaries of flood programs we assess barriers and enabling conditions for AA to reach benefit and empower women and broader opportunities for transformation of gender norms and social inequalities Our findings reveal key implementation challenges including limited funding weak integration with broader disaster risk reduction efforts and inadequate early warning systems However we also identify practical strategies for improving AA s gender responsiveness such as relying on individual rather than household level data providing accessible early warning information offering aid modalities that meet women s specific needs such as dignity kits ensuring women s participation in community decision making and facilitating ongoing inclusive household and community dialogues in flood prone communities rather than only responding to specific flood warnings The paper concludes with recommendations for scaling up gender inclusive AA programming to enhance resilience and reduce the disproportionate impacts of flooding on women Innovative Agricultural Extension for Women S. Tjip Walker, 1990 In Cameroon s poor northwest province agricultural extension was extended to women for practical not ideological reasons in a sustainable replicable experiment that increased production and women s income Reaching Women Mary L.. Women Reaching Women ,2005 Biblical study exploring the account of the building of the tabernacle the significance of its design its role in God s eternal plan the fulfillment of its purpose by Jesus Christ and its variety of meanings for a personal relationship with God Women, Men and News Paula Poindexter, Sharon Meraz, Amy Schmitz Weiss, 2010-12-22 This multi authored scholarly volume explores the divide between men and women in their consumption of news media looking at how the sexes read and use news historically and currently how they use technology to access their news and how today s news pertains to and is used by women The volume also addresses diversity issues among women s use of news considering racial ethnic international and feminist perspectives The volume is intended to help readers understand adult news use behavior a critical and timely issue considering the state of newspapers and television news in today s multi media news environment Women Leading Women Jaye Martin, Terri Stovall, 2009-01-01 Based on the precept that a biblical paradigm for women's leadership must occur under the authority of the local church. Women Leading Women fills the void of research-based textbooks that address academic requirements for the core women's leadership course curriculum and guide pastors on how women can help fulfill the church's purpose. Women will be encouraged to lead and train other women to engage the culture to reach women for Christ, to involve women in ministry and much more. Anticipated for primary use in colleges and seminaries, this book is designed for a fifteen-week semester and will include a link to a Web site where teaching outlines and PowerPoint notes for each chapter are provided.

Development with Women United States. Congress. House. Select Committee on Hunger, 1987. Enhancing Women's Participation in Economic Development, 1994-01-01. Annotation. Makes recommendations for removing the barriers women face in contributing to and benefiting from sustainable economic development. International experience has proved that support for a stronger role for women in society contributes to economic growth through improved child survival rates, better family health, and reduced fertility rates. Nevertheless, women still face many barriers in contributing to and benefiting from development. These include low investment in female education and health and restricted access to services and assets. This study highlights five areas that could help change this inequitable situation: education, health, wage labor, agriculture, and natural resource management and financial services. A gender and development strategy is suggested that would take into account the relative roles and responsibilities of women and men, implying that the actions and attitudes of men must change. The ideas presented in this paper are an example of the World Bank's commitment to mainstreaming gender concerns into its operations. Although significant steps have already been taken in this direction, there remains a long road ahead. Also available. Women's Activism for Gender Equality in Africa. This volume on Women's Activism for Gender Equality in Africa is a special collaboration between the Journal of International Women's Studies (JIWS) and Wagadu, two open access journals that address gender issues within a transnational and cross-cultural context. Using interdisciplinary feminist and activist approaches, these essays explore individual and collective actions undertaken by African women in cultural, social, economic, historical, and political contexts. In revealing the diversity of African women's activism, the underlying issues around which women's social change work develops, and the impact that work has on individuals and communities, this volume has significance for women and men throughout the world.
