Arbuthnott, Dennis W. Arbuthnott, Valerie A.

Thompson, 2014-02-04 Human mental capacities and processes are the raw materials with which psychotherapists work Thus what cognitive scientists have discovered in recent decades is potentially tremendous value for psychotherapeutic practice But the new knowledge is not readily accessible to therapists who find both language and methodology off putting The Mind in Therapy bridges the gap It offers a comprehensive overview of the relevant range of cognitive activities ranging from complex mental operations such as problem solving decision making reasoning and metacognition to basic functions such as attention memory and emotion The authors integrate key new findings about the interaction between cognition and emotion inhibition and counterfactual thinking processes that loom large in practice Each chapter reviews an area of cognitive research clearly explains the findings and highlights their implications and applications in diverse models of therapy cognitive behavioral psychodynamic humanistic and family Each includes case vignettes that illustrate the ways in which the concepts are important and useful in practice All therapists rely on the human mind to effect the change they seek The clearer understanding of human cognitive capacities idiosyncrasies and limitations their own as well as clients that they will gain from this book will enhance the effectiveness of both beginning and experienced practitioners whatever their orientation

Adolescents in the Search for Meaning Mary L. Warner, 2006-03-03 As is painfully evident from the reports of school shootings gang violence dysfunctional family life and from statistics on adolescent suicide many teens live troubled lives Even those who live a normal life still face the challenges adults face but teens are also engaged in establishing independence and finding their identity However few adolescents have the same resources as adults for surviving life challenges Building from the idea that story is a powerful source of meaning particularly those stories that resonate with our own lives this book suggests that the stories of other young adults offer a resource yet to be fully tapped Adolescents in the Search for Meaning begins from the perspective of young adults by sharing the results of a survey of over 1400 teens and also includes the insights of authors of Young Adult Literature The book presents over 120 novels that teens have identified as meaningful as well as books recommended by YA authors and experts in the field of YA literature For any teacher librarian parent or counselor wanting to reach young adults this book is ideal

How can arts-based approaches benefit patients and professionals within the health care system? Can the skills creative writers use to craft their work be applied more broadly to enhance the wellbeing of those in need of medical care? This book offers a practical introduction to how these ideas can be employed within health care settings as treatments to foster more empathetic and humane interactions between patients and practitioners and to help understand the personal narratives of others. Combining aesthetic theory with practice, Writing and Health Care reflects on the role of creative expression in bettering the life and well-being of oneself and others. Touching on areas as diverse as health humanities, narrative medicine, creative therapies, and transformative language arts, it introduces a range of genres including graphic medicine, illness narratives, sick lit, and more. Foregrounding health justice and thinking with intersectional communities at the forefront, this book enables readers to write in ways that resist limited thinking, contribute to the transformation of health systems and processes, and generate works that promote forms of expression with therapeutic effects for patients and practitioners alike.

Creating and Promoting Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries Donna L. Gilton, 2016-06-21 Creating and Promoting Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries: Tools and Tips for Practitioners is the sequel to Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries: Principles, Programs, and People. On the one hand, Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries focuses on the information needs and the developmental and psychological characteristics of diverse library users of all ages. It endorses the use of ILI to promote lifelong learning in public libraries both by borrowing techniques from academic and school libraries and by building on existing public library traditions of programming and outreach. This book also compares lifelong learning in public libraries to informal and nonformal education in museums, community organizations, and agencies, places of worship, and other organizations. In addition, Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries describes basic steps that librarians can execute in order to get started. On the other hand, Creating and Promoting Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries focuses much more on how public librarians can specifically plan and implement their instruction, with chapters on planning for instruction using teaching methodologies, teaching with and about technology, and bringing ILI together with more traditional public library services, programming, and activities such as reference and Readers Advisory services, bibliotherapy, and cultural and literacy programming. Changes in ILI standards and comparisons of ILI with basic reading, media, digital, and cultural literacies are also described. Both books together should act as basic manuals for public librarians who promote lifelong learning. Creating and Promoting Lifelong Learning in Public Libraries also have helpful teaching hints for all librarians and other professionals.
