Reading Athenas Dance Card Men Against Fire In Vietnam:

Reading Athena's Dance Card Russell W. Glenn, 2000 Glenn first surveyed members of the 1st Cavalry Division who fought in Vietnam then polled a sample of officers currently on active duty to validate the results His findings demonstrate that contrary to popular perception nearly all American combatants met the fundamental demand of combat engage the enemy when called upon This is a far different statistic from the 25 percent commonly attributed to U S ground forces in World War II

Men Against Fire S. L. A. Marshall, 2012-11-15 S L A Slam Marshall was a veteran of World War I and a combat historian during World War II He startled the military and civilian world in 1947 by announcing that in an average infantry company no more than one in four soldiers actually fired their weapons while in contact with the enemy His contention was based on interviews he conducted immediately after combat in both the European and Pacific theaters of World War II To remedy the gunfire imbalance he proposed changes to infantry training designed to ensure that American soldiers in future wars brought more fire upon the enemy His studies during the Korean War showed that the ratio of fire and more than doubled since World War II

On Wars Michael Mann, 2023-08-08 A history of wars through the ages and across the world and the irrational calculations that so often lie behind them Benjamin Franklin once said There never was a good war or a bad peace But what determines whether war or peace is chosen Award winning sociologist Michael Mann concludes that it is a handful of political leaders people with emotions and ideologies and constrained by inherited culture and institutions who undertake such decisions usually irrationally choosing war and seldom achieving their desired results Mann examines the history of war through the ages and across the globe from ancient Rome to Ukraine from imperial China to the Middle East from Japan and Europe to Latin and North America He explores the reasons groups go to war the different forms of wars how warfare has changed and how it has stayed the same and the surprising ways in which seemingly powerful countries lose wars In masterfully combining ideological economic political and military analysis Mann offers new insight into the many consequences of choosing war

New Directions in Strategic Thinking 2.0 Russell W. Glenn, 2018-07-06 The Australian National University's Strategic Defence Studies Centre SDSC is Australia's premier university based strategic studies think tank Fifty years after the Centre was founded in 1966 SDSC celebrated its continued research publications teaching and government advisory role with a two day conference entitled New Directions in Strategic Thinking 2.0 The event saw the podium graced by many of the world's premier thinkers in the strategic studies field An evening between those tours to the lectern brought together academics practitioners and other honoured guests at a commemorative dinner held beneath the widespread wings of the G for George bomber in the Australian War Memorial an event that included SDSC's own Professor Desmond Ball AO making his last public appearance Since SDSC's 25th anniversary the world has seen the collapse of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War Bipolarity gave way to the emergence of the United States as the world's sole superpower a status many now see as under threat Both the nature of the threats and identity of individual competitors has changed in the interim quarter century Non state actors are presenting rising challenges to national governments Meanwhile a diminished Russia and far more wealthy China seek to reassert themselves Never before has the call for reasoned innovative security studies thinking been more pronounced Rarely has a group so able to offer that thought come together as was the case in July 2016 This book encapsulates the essence of this cutting edge thinking and is a must read for those concerned with emerging strategic challenges facing Australia and its security partners

Increasing Small Arms Lethality In Afghanistan: Taking Back The Infantry Half-Kilometer Major Thomas P. Ehrhart, 2015-11-06 Operations in Afghanistan frequently require United States ground forces to engage and destroy the enemy at ranges beyond 300 meters These operations occur in rugged terrain and in situations where traditional supporting fires are limited due to range or risk of collateral damage With these limitations the infantry in Afghanistan require a precise lethal fire capability that exists only in a properly trained and equipped infantryman While the infantryman is ideally suited for combat in Afghanistan his current weapons doctrine and marksmanship training do not provide a precise lethal fire capability to 500 meters and are therefore inappropriate Comments from returning non commissioned officers and officers reveal that about fifty percent of engagements occur past 300 meters The enemy tactics are to engage United States forces from high ground with medium and heavy weapons often including mortars knowing that we are restricted by our equipment limitations and the inability of our overburdened soldiers to maneuver at elevations exceeding 6000 feet Current equipment training and doctrine are optimized for engagements under 300 meters and on level terrain There are several ways to extend the lethality of the infantry A more effective 5.56 mm bullet can be designed which provides enhanced terminal performance out to 500 meters A better option to increase incapacitation is to adopt a larger caliber cartridge which will function using components of the M16 M4 The 2006 study by the Joint Service Wound Ballistics Integrated Product Team discovered that the ideal caliber seems to be between 6.5 and 7 mm This was also the general conclusion of all military ballistics studies since the end of World War I

In the Middle of the Fight David Eugene Johnson, Adam Grissom, Olga Oliker, 2008 This monograph presents a qualitative assessment of the performance of medium armored forces in 13 past conflicts that span the range of military operations The accompanying analysis is designed to help inform U S Army decisions about fielding medium armored forces in the future The case histories yielded three major insights First medium armored forces fare poorly against competent heavily armored opponents This finding will prove relevant to the U S Army's medium armored forces if their survivability and lethality do not live up to expectations or cannot be fully realized in battlefield conditions Second doctrinal and organizational steps can in certain circumstances mitigate medium armor's liabilities. These steps include the implementation of high quality combined arms tactics down to the lowest echelons, the effective application of supporting firepower and training for crews and junior leaders. Finally, the U.S. Army has lacked a forced entry armor capability since the retirement of the M551 Sheridan. Neither the Stryker vehicle nor the Future Combat Systems as currently envisioned can fill that critical void. The authors conclude that it would be prudent for the U.S. Army to maintain a mix of heavy, medium armored and light forces that can be task organized and employed in conditions that best match their attributes. Medium armored forces have much to offer in such a mix provided by publisher.

They Marched Into Sunlight David Maraniss, 2003. Focuses on a crucial two day battle in Vietnam that was also marked by an ill fated protest by University of Wisconsin students at the Dow Chemical Company in an hour by hour narrative.

Historical Evidence and Argument David Henige, 2006-01-20. Historians know about the past because they examine the evidence. But what exactly is evidence? how do historians know what it means and how can we trust them to get it right? Historian David Henige tackles such questions of historical reliability head on in his skeptical unsparing and acerbically witty Historical Evidence and Argument. Systematic doubt is his watchword and he practices what he preaches through a variety of insightful assessments of historical controversies for example over the dating of artifacts and the textual analysis of translated documents. Skepticism Henige contends forces us to recognize the limits of our knowledge but is also a positive force that stimulates new scholarship to counter it.

Long Journeys Home Michael D. Gambone, 2017-10-16. In the modern history of American veterans it is sometimes difficult to separate myth from fact. The men and women who served in World War II are routinely praised as heroes, the Greatest Generation after all triumphed over fascism and successfully reentered postwar society. Veterans of the Vietnam War on the other hand occupy a different thread in the postwar narrative, sometimes as a threat to society but usually as victims of it. These vets returned home to a combination of disdain, fear and prolonged suffering. And until very recently both the public and historians have largely overlooked veterans of the Korean War altogether. The hit television show M.A.S.H. was set in Korea but was more about Vietnam. Long Journeys Home explores the veteran experience of World War II, Korea and Vietnam. It examines and dissects the various myths that have grown up around each of these wars. Author Michael D. Gambone compares and contrasts the basic elements of each narrative including the factors that influenced the decision to enlist, the impact of combat on life after the war, the struggles of postwar economic adjustment and participation in or withdrawal from social and political activism. Gambone does not treat these veterans monolithically but instead puts each era's veterans in historical context. He also explores the nuances of race, gender and class. Despite many differences, some obvious and some not, Gambone nonetheless finds a great deal of continuity and ultimately concludes that Korean and Vietnam veterans have much more in common with the Greatest Generation than was previously understood.

Not a Gentleman's War Milam, 2010-07-13. Wars are not fought by politicians and generals; they are fought by soldiers. Written by a combat veteran of the Vietnam War. Not a

White,2005 This bibliography is a supplement to the Special Bibliography Series Number 80 compiled in 1990 to support the 14th Military History Symposium It is primarily intended as a listing of scholarly works completed since 1990 on the Vietnam War although some works prior to that date are included The bibliography is selected from the holdings on that war housed in the McDermott library United States Air Force Academy and includes books journal articles government publications and technical reports Newspaper articles works of fiction collections of poetry and most personal narratives are not included The Clark Special Collections Branch of the library has extensive primary source materials and artifacts focused on American POW experiences in Southeast Asia Those items are also excluded from this bibliography since they are limited to in house use only Individuals wanting information about that collection should contact the Special Collections Curator and Academy Archivist The Psychology of the Athenian Hoplite Jason Crowley,2012-08-02 Using current socio psychological research this book reveals exactly why amateur Athenian hoplites unhesitatingly engaged their enemies in savage close quarters combat Parameters ,2000 Army ,2000 Doctrine of Eternal Recurrence Austin G. Long,2008 The publication of a new counterinsurgency COIN doctrine manual in late 2006 was widely heralded as an indication that the U S military was finally coming to understand the problems it has recently faced in Iraq and Afghanistan However this interpretation assumes a tight linkage between doctrine as written and operations as actually conducted By comparing modern counterinsurgency doctrine and operations to those of 1960s this paper tests and ultimately disproves this proposition An examination of COIN doctrine and operations in the 1960s reveals that operations seldom matched written doctrine Instead of winning hearts and minds improving civil military relations conducting small unit operations and gathering intelligence most Vietnam War commanders and units attempted to defeat the insurgency through large scale operations and overwhelming firepower Modern U S COIN operations in Afghanistan and Iraq demonstrate a similar preference for high intensity warfare and a similar inability to adapt technologically and mentally to the requirements of COIN To help explain the discrepancy between written doctrine and actual operations this paper posits that ingrained organizational concepts and beliefs have a much greater influence on operations than written doctrine While embedded beliefs can help organizations as they conduct their preferred missions they can be detrimental in other contexts Mental and material preparation for high intensity warfare has made the U S military poorly suited to COIN Altering these beliefs will require more than just new doctrine and some additional professional education The services must reorient themselves mentally as well as physically provided by publisher
