Rayleigh A History:

Rayleigh Ian Yearsley, 2005 Rayleigh owes its origins to the flints on Hambro Hill which attracted its first human residents as long ago as the Stone Age In Saxon times the focus moved to the area covered by the modern High Street but it was not until Rayleigh Castle was built under the Normans that the town really came to life Its market and fair made it one of the principal towns in south east Essex throughout the medieval period and many significant historic buildings from the 14th century onwards survive After a period of decline in the 18th and early 19th centuries the town s importance revived with the coming of the railway in 1889 Rapid development followed and the 20th century saw massive expansion beyond the High Street area This book is the first full chronological history of Rayleigh to be written and sheds light on several poorly documented periods including the first half of the 20th century A wide selection of splendid previously unpublished illustrations enhances this welcome addition to the bookshelves of Rayleigh residents and local historians alike

A History of Aerodynamics John David Anderson, John D. Anderson, Jr, 1998 From the Foreword John Anderson s book represents a milestone in aviation literature For the first time aviation enthusiasts both specialists and popular readers alike possess an authoritative history of aerodynamic theory Not only is this study authoritative it is also highly readable and linked to the actual and more familiar story of how the airplane evolved The book touches on all the major theorists and their contributions and most important the historical context in which they worked to move the science of aerodynamics forward Von Hardesty Smithsonian Institution From the reviews Something of the unexpected quality of this book can be inferred from its full title A History of Aerodynamics and Its Impact on Flying Machines Pilots tend to suppose that the science of aerodynamics began empirically somewhere around the time of Lilienthal and the Wrights and that aerodynamics and manned flight are roughly coeval It is therefore surprising to come upon a photograph of the Wright Flyer as late as page 242 of the 478 page volume Peter Garrison Flying This book successfully straddles the boundary that separates a text book from a history book It is of equal interest to both the aerodynamicist and the layman The textual balance achieved by the author has resulted in a book that is enjoyable and educational Earl See American Aviation Historical Society Newsletter

The History of the Theory of Structures Karl-Eugen Kurrer, 2012-01-09 This book traces the evolution of theory of structures and strength of materials the development of the geometrical thinking of the Renaissance to become the fundamental engineering science discipline rooted in classical mechanics Starting with the strength experiments of Leonardo da Vinci and Galileo the author examines the emergence of individual structural analysis methods and their formation into theory of structures in the 19th century For the first time a book of this kind outlines the development from classical theory of structures to the structural mechanics and computational mechanics of the 20th century In doing so the author has managed to bring alive the differences between the players with respect to their engineering and scientific profiles and personalities and to create an understanding for the social context Brief insights into common methods of analysis backed up by historical details help the reader gain an understanding of the history of structural mechanics from the standpoint of modern engineering practice A total of 175 brief biographies of important personalities in civil and structural engineering as well as structural mechanics plus an extensive bibliography round off this work

History of Strength of Materials Stephen Timoshenko, 1983-01-01 Strength of materials is that branch of engineering concerned with the deformation and disruption of solids when forces other than changes in position or equilibrium are acting upon them The development of our understanding of the strength of materials has enabled engineers to establish the forces which can safely be imposed on structure or components or to choose materials appropriate to the necessary dimensions of structures and components which have to withstand given loads without suffering effects deleterious to their proper functioning This excellent historical survey of the strength of materials with many references to the theories of elasticity and structures is based on an extensive series of lectures delivered by the author at Stanford University Palo Alto California Timoshenko explores the early roots of the discipline from the great monuments and pyramids of ancient Egypt through the temples roads and fortifications of ancient Greece and Rome The author fixes the formal beginning of the modern science of the strength of materials with the publications of Galileo's book Two Sciences and traces the rise and development as well as industrial and commercial applications of the fledgling science from the seventeenth century through the twentieth century Timoshenko fleshes out the bare bones of mathematical theory with lucid demonstrations of important equations and brief biographies of highly influential mathematicians including Euler Lagrange Navier Thomas Young Saint Venant Franz Neumann Maxwell Kelvin Rayleigh Klein Prandtl and many others These theories equations and biographies are further enhanced by clear discussions of the development of engineering and engineering

While the physical sciences are a continuously evolving source of technology and of understanding about our world they have become so specialized and rely on so much prerequisite knowledge that for many people today the divide between the sciences and the humanities seems even greater than it was when C P Snow delivered his famous 1959 lecture The Two Cultures In A Cultural History of Physics Hungarian scientist and educator Károly Simonyi succeeds in bridging this chasm by describing the experimental methods and theoretical interpretations that created scientific knowledge from ancient times to the present day within the cultural environment in which it was formed Unlike any other work of its kind Simonyi's seminal opus explores the interplay of science and the humanities to convey the wonder and excitement of scientific development throughout the ages These pages contain an abundance of excerpts from original resources a wide array of clear and straightforward explanations and an astonishing wealth of insight revealing the historical progress of science and inviting readers into a dialogue with the great scientific minds that shaped our current understanding of physics Beautifully illustrated accurate in its scientific content and broad in its historical and cultural perspective this book will be a valuable reference for scholars and an inspiration to aspiring scientists and humanists who believe that science is an integral part of our culture
