Reinventing the Lacandón Brian Gollnick, 2022-08-23 Before massive deforestation began in the 1960s the Lacandón jungle which lies on the border of Mexico and Guatemala was part of the largest tropical rain forest north of the Amazon The destruction of the Lacandón occurred with little attention from the international press until January 1 1994 when a group of armed Maya rebels led by a charismatic spokesperson who called himself Subcomandante Marcos emerged from jungle communities and briefly occupied several towns in the Mexican state of Chiapas These rebels known as the Zapatista National Liberation Army became front page news around the globe and they used their notoriety to issue rhetorically powerful communiqués that denounced political corruption the Mexican government's treatment of indigenous peoples and the negative impact of globalization As Brian Gollnick reveals the Zapatista communiqués had deeper roots in the Mayan rain forest than Westerners realized and he points out that the very idea of the jungle is also deeply rooted though in different ways in the Western imagination Gollnick draws on theoretical innovations offered by subaltern studies to discover oral traces left by indigenous inhabitants in dominant cultural productions He explores both how the jungle region and its inhabitants have been represented in literary writings from the time of the Spanish conquest to the present and how the indigenous people have represented themselves in such works including post colonial and anti colonial narratives poetry video and photography His goal is to show how popular and elite cultures have interacted in creating depictions of life in the rain forest and to offer new critical vocabularies for analyzing forms of cross cultural expression Male Eating Disorders Russell Delderfield,2018-12-05 This book takes a novel approach to the study of male eating disorders an area that is often dominated by clinical discourses The study of eating disorders in men has purportedly suffered from a lack of dedicated attention to personal and socio cultural aspects Delderfield tackles this deficiency by spotlighting a set of personal accounts written by a group of men who have experiences of disordered eating The text presents critical interpretations that aim to situate these experiences in the social and cultural context in which these disorders occur This discursive work is underpinned by an eclectic scholarly engagement with social psychology and sociology literature around masculinities embodiment and fatness belonging punishment stigma and control leading to understandings about relationships with food body and self This is undertaken with a reflexive element as the personal intersects with the professional This text will appeal to students scholars and clinicians in social sciences humanities and healthcare studies including public health

Companion to Reinventing Management Education Chris Steyaert, Timon Beyes, Martin Parker, 2016-06-17 The position and role of the business school and its educational programmes have become increasingly prominent yet also questioned and contested What management education entails and how it is enacted has become a matter of profound concern in the field of higher education and more generally for the development of the organized world Drawing upon the humanities and social sciences The Routledge Companion to Reinventing Management Education imagines a different and better education offered to students of management entrepreneurship and organization studies It is an intervention into the debates on what is taught and how learning takes place demonstrating both the potential and the limits of what the humanities and social sciences can do for management education Divided into six sections the book traces the history and theory of management education reimagining central educational principles and outlining an emerging practice based approach With an international cast of authors The Routledge Companion to Reinventing Management Education has been written for contemporary and future educators and for students and scholars who seek to make a difference through their practice Psychosocial Pathways

Towards Reinventing the South African University Sabrina Liccardo, 2020-11-02 This book proposes a conceptual empirical framework for exploring forms of continuity and change along psychosocial pathways in South African universities It illustrates how the psychosocial pathways are grounded in the symbolic narratives and knowledges of young scientists engineers and architects all interlocutors in the research from which this book is based Alala Mamoratwa Welile Odirile Kaiya Amirah Takalani Nosakhele Naila Ambani Khanyisile Itumeleng Ethwasa and Kgnaya provide collective standpoints in the multiplicities within and between the lived lives and told stories of young Black South African women in Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics STEM fields In doing so this compelling work advances possibilities for demythologising scientific endeavour as a white male achievement and shifting knowledge communities across gendered racialised class and national divides This book presents an innovative narrative methodology utilising the myth of the Minotaur to examine the state of the university at the heart of the hierarchical labyrinth in post apartheid South Africa Throughout the work the author wrestles with and self reflexively highlights her own positionality as a white middle class South African woman to examine how this affects the production of this research in ways which serve to preserve the colonial knowledge system With the rise of the Rhodes Must Fall and Fees Must Fall student movement in South Africa demanding for the fall of institutionalised racial hierarchies the author uses the cover image of narrative formations in the spirit of exploration to think with and through undulating networked forms that could possibly forge new psychosocial pathways towards decolonising and reinventing South African universities This work offers a unique conceptual and methodological resource for students and scholars of psychosocial and narrative theory as well as those who are concerned about the politics of higher education both in South Africa and in other contexts around the world Reinventing Babel in Medieval

French Emma Campbell, 2023-09-09 How can untranslatability help us to think about the historical as well as the cultural and linguistic dimensions of translation For the past two centuries theoretical debates about translation have responded to the idea that translation overcomes linguistic and cultural incommensurability while never inscribing full equivalence More recently untranslatability has been foregrounded in projects at the intersections between translation studies and other disciplines notably philosophy and comparative literature The critical turn to untranslatability re emphasizes the importance of translation s negotiation with foreignness or difference and prompts further reflection on how that might be understood historically philosophically and ethically If translation never replicates a source exactly what does it mean to communicate some elements and not others What or who determines what is translatable or what can or cannot be recontextualized What linguistic political cultural or historical factors condition such determinations Central to these questions is the way translation negotiates with and inscribes asymmetries among languages and cultures operations that are inevitably ethical and political as well as linguistic This book explores how approaching questions of translatability and untranslatability through premodern texts and languages can inform broader interdisciplinary conversations about translation as a concept and a practice Working with case studies drawn from the francophone cultures of Flanders England and northern France it explores how medieval texts challenge modern definitions of language text and translation and in so doing how such texts can open sites of variance and non identity within what later became the hegemonic global languages we know today
