Vernacular Modernism Sarah Kate Gillespie,2018 Early years In the studio and out Photographing African Americans and roll Jordan roll The Southern highlands Checklist of the exhibition The Early American Daguerreotype Sarah Kate Gillespie,2016-02-12 The American daguerreotype as something completely new a mechanical invention that produced an image a hybrid of fine art and science and technology The daguerreotype invented in France came to America in 1839 By 1851 this early photographic method had been improved by American daguerreotypists to such a degree that it was often referred to as the American process The daguerreotype now perhaps mostly associated with stiffly posed portraits of serious visaged nineteenth century personages was an extremely detailed photographic image produced though a complicated process involving a copper plate light sensitive chemicals and mercury fumes It was as Sarah Kate Gillespie shows in this generously illustrated history something wholly and remarkably new a product of science and innovative technology that resulted in a visual object It was a hybrid with roots in both fine art and science and it interacted in reciprocally formative ways with fine art science and technology Gillespie maps the evolution of the daguerreotype as medium and as profession from its introduction to the ascendancy of the American process tracing its relationship to other fields and the professionalization of those fields She does so by recounting the activities of a series of American daguerreotypists including fine artists scientists and mechanical tinkerers She describes for example experiments undertaken by Samuel F B Morse as he made the transition from artist to inventor how artists made use of the daguerreotype both borrowing conventions from fine art and establishing new ones for a new medium the use of the daguerreotype in various sciences particularly astronomy and technological innovators who drew on their work in the mechanical arts By the 1860s the daguerreotype had been supplanted by newer technologies Its rise and fall represents an early instance of the ever constant stream of emerging visual technologies Art Journal ,1960 Advertising Progress Pamela Walker Laird,2020-01-15 Selected by Choice Magazine as an Outstanding Academic Title Originally published in 1998 Drawing on both documentary and pictorial evidence Pamela Walker Laird explores the modernization of American advertising to 1920 She links its rise and transformation to changes that affected American society and business alike including the rise of professional specialization and the communications revolution that new technologies made possible Laird finds a fundamental shift in the kinds of people who created advertisements and their relationships to the firms that advertised Advertising evolved from the work of informing customers telling people what manufacturers had to sell to creating consumers persuading people that they needed to buy Through this story Laird shows how and why in the intense competitions for both markets and cultural authority the creators of advertisements laid claim to progress and used it to legitimate their places in American business and culture Nineteenth-Century Photographs and Architecture Micheline Nilsen,2017-07-05 Eschewing the limiting idea that nineteenth century architecture photography merely reflects functionality the objective of this collection is to reflect the aesthetic intellectual and cultural concerns of the time The essays hold appeal for social and cultural historians as well as those with an interest in the fields of art history urban geography history of travel and tourism Nineteenth century photographers captured what could be seen and what they wanted to be seen Their images informed of exploration progress heritage and destruction Architecture was a staple subject for the first generation of photographers as it patiently tolerated the long exposures of the early processes During its formative decades photography responded to evolutionary cultural forces of market and artistic production Photographs of architecture reflected a specific political or social context modulated through individual points of view For this reason the examination of each photographic image as a primary visual document and an aesthetic object rather than a technical milestone on a chronological trajectory affords a richer multi faceted approach to the extensive and complex corpus of photographs taken by photographers all over the world This project acknowledges the importance of technique in the early decades of photography but focuses on the thematic content of the material It places the photography of architecture in an international context

under the contemporary critical lens sharpened by theoretical and cultural examinations of the topic

Winslow Homer and the Camera Frank H. Goodyear III, Dana E. Byrd, 2018-01-01 A revelatory exploration of Winslow Homer s engagement with photography shedding new light on his celebrated paintings and works on paper One of the greatest American painters of the 19th century Winslow Homer 1836 1910 also maintained a deep engagement with photography throughout his career Focusing on the important yet often overlooked role that photography played in Homer s art this volume exposes Homer s own experiments with the camera he first bought one in 1882 It also explores how the medium of photography and the larger visual economy influenced his work as a painter watercolorist and printmaker at a moment when new print technologies inundated the public with images Frank Goodyear and Dana Byrd demonstrate that photography offered Homer new ways of seeing and representing the world from his early commercial engravings sourced from contemporary photographs to the complex relationship between his late career paintings of life in the Bahamas Florida and Cuba and the emergent trend of tourist photography The authors argue that Homer s understanding of the camera s ability to create an image that is simultaneously accurate and capable of deception was vitally important to his artistic practice in all media Richly illustrated and full of exciting new discoveries Winslow Homer and the Camera is a long overdue examination of the ways in which photography shaped the vision of one of America s most original painters

Painted Journeys Peter H. Hassrick, Mindy N. Besaw, 2015-07 Artist explorer John Mix Stanley 1814 1872 one of the most celebrated chroniclers of the American West in his time was in a sense a victim of his own success So highly regarded was his work that more than two hundred of his paintings were held at the Smithsonian Institution where in 1865 a fire destroyed all but seven of them This volume featuring a comprehensive collection of Stanley s extant art reproduced in full color offers an opportunity and ample reason to rediscover the remarkable accomplishments of this outsize figure of nineteenth century American culture Originally from New York State Stanley journeyed west in 1842 to paint Indian life During the U S Mexican War he joined a frontier military expedition and traveled from Santa Fe to California producing sketches and paintings of the campaign along the way work that helped secure his fame in the following decades He was also appointed chief artist for Isaac Stevens's survey of the 48th parallel for a proposed transcontinental railroad The essays in this volume by noted scholars of American art document and reflect on Stanley's life and work from every angle The authors consider the artist's experience on government expeditions his solo tours among the Oregon settlers and western and Plains Indians and his career in Washington and search for government patronage as well as his individual works With contributions by Emily C Burns Scott Manning Stevens Lisa Strong Melissa Speidel Jacquelyn Sparks and Emily C Wilson the essays in this volume convey the full scope of John Mix Stanley's artistic accomplishment and document the unfolding of that uniquely American vision throughout the artist's colorful life Together they restore Stanley to his rightful place in the panorama of nineteenth century American life and art

Dark Smiles Alicia Carroll, 2003 Although George Eliot has long been described as the novelist of the Midlands she often brought the outer reaches of the empire home in her work Dark Smiles Race and Desire in George Eliot studies Eliot's problematic career long interest in representing racial and ethnic Otherness Placing Eliot's diverse and wide ranging treatment of Otherness in its contemporary context Alicia Carroll argues that Eliot both engages and resists traditional racial and ethnic representations of Otherness Carroll finds that Eliot like other women writers of her time often appropriates narratives of Otherness to explore issues silenced in mainstream Victorian culture particularly the problem of the desirous woman But if Otherness in Eliot's century was usually gendered as woman and constructed as the object of white male desire Eliot often seeks to subvert that vision Professor Carroll demonstrates Eliot's tendency to exoticize images of girlhood vocation and maternity in order to critique and explore gendered subjectivities Indeed the disruptive presence of a racial or ethnic outsider often fractures Eliot's narratives of community creating a powerful critique of home culture The consistent reliance of Eliot's work upon racial and ethnic Otherness as a mode of cultural critique is explored here for the first time in its entirety
