Reading Dido Marilyn Desmond, 1994 Reading Dido Marilyn Desmond, 1994 Dido's Daughters Margaret W. Ferguson, 2007-11-01 Winner of the 2004 Book Award from the Society for the Study of Early Modern Women and the 2003 Roland H Bainton Prize for Literature from the Sixteenth Century Society and Conference Our common definition of literacy is the ability to read and write in one language But as Margaret Ferguson reveals in Dido's Daughters this description is inadequate because it fails to help us understand heated conflicts over literacy during the emergence of print culture The fifteenth through seventeenth centuries she shows were a contentious era of transition from Latin and other clerical modes of literacy toward more vernacular forms of speech and writing Ferguson's aim in this long awaited work is twofold to show that what counted as more valuable among these competing literacies had much to do with notions of gender and to demonstrate how debates about female literacy were critical to the emergence of imperial nations Looking at writers whom she dubs the figurative daughters of the mythological figure Dido builder of an empire that threatened to rival Rome Ferguson traces debates about literacy and empire in the works of Marguerite de Navarre Christine de Pizan Elizabeth Cary and Aphra Behn as well as male writers such as Shakespeare Rabelais and Wyatt The result is a study that sheds new light on the crucial roles that gender and women played in the modernization of England and France Gender and Text in the Later Middle Ages Jane Chance, 2019-11-07 The women who spoke or wrote in the margins of the Middle Ages women who were oppressed and diminished by social and religious institutions often were not literate Or if they could read they did not know how to write Transforming or subverting Western and patristic traditions associated with the clergy they also turned to Eastern and North African traditions and to popular oral theater and focused in their choice of genre on lyric romance and confessional autobiography These essays analyze their texts and reconstruct a medieval feminine aesthetic that begins a rewriting of cultural and literary history Virgil in the Renaissance David Scott Wilson-Okamura, 2010-08-12 The disciplines of classical scholarship were established in their modern form between 1300 and 1600 and Virgil was a test case for many of them This book is concerned with what became of Virgil in this period how he was understood and how his poems were recycled What did readers assume about Virgil in the long decades between Dante and Sidney Petrarch and Spenser Boccaccio and Ariosto Which commentators had the most influence What story if any was Virgil's Eclogues supposed to tell What was the status of his Georgics Which parts of his epic attracted the most imitators Building on specialized scholarship of the last hundred years this book provides a panoramic synthesis of what scholars and poets from across Europe believed they could know about Virgil's life and poetry Anthology of Ancient Medieval Woman's Song A. Klinck, 2004-04-16 This collection focuses on a woman's point of view in love poetry and juxtaposes poems by women and poems about women to raise questions about how femininity is constructed Although most medieval woman's songs are either anonymous or male authored lyrics in a popular style the term can usefully be expanded to cover poetry composed by women and poetry that is aristocratic or learned rather than popular Poetry from ancient Greece and Rome that resonates with the medieval poems is also included here Readers will find a range of voices often echoing similar themes as women rejoice or lament praise or condemn plead or curse speak in jest or in earnest to men and to each other about love

Desiring Discourse James Paxon, Cynthia Gravlee, 1998-12 These essays examine the central role played by Ovid in medieval amatory literature In so doing they address the theoretical problems of the entrenched aesthetics of reception long tied to the Ovidian Middle Ages while they also seek at times to overturn many of the prior critical perceptions associated with Ovidian suasive discourse in particular the unproblematized assertion of male will and the erasure of female voice Responding to the great fund of critical work done on amatory literature in the Middle Ages a literature thus far organized into an array of categories such as the rhetorical institution of persuasion and seduction the Ovidian heritage aetas ovidiana the language of amatory trial the genealogy of the romance and the convention of courtly love this volume seeks to provide a comprehensive look at the rhetorical and social conditions of desire

Audience and Reception in the Early Modern Period John R. Decker, Mitzi Kirkland-Ives, 2021-09-09 Early modern audiences readerships and viewerships were not homogenous Differences in status education language wealth and experience to name only a few variables could influence how a group of people or a particular person received and made sense of sermons public proclamations dramatic and musical performances images objects and spaces The ways in which each of these were framed and executed could have a serious impact on their relevance and effectiveness The chapters in this volume explore the ways in which authors poets artists preachers theologians playwrights and performers took account of and encoded pluriform potential audiences readers and viewers in their works and how these varied parties encountered and responded to these works The contributors here investigate these complex interactions through a variety of critical and methodological lenses

Tragedy and Trauma in the Plays of Christopher Marlowe Mathew R. Martin, 2016-03-09 Contending that criticism of Marlowe's plays has been limited by humanist conceptions of tragedy this book engages with trauma theory especially psychoanalytic trauma theory to offer a fresh critical perspective within which to make sense of the tension in Marlowe's plays between the tragic and the traumatic The author argues that tragedies are trauma narratives narratives of wounding however in Marlowe s plays a traumatic aesthetics disrupts the closure that tragedy seeks to enact Martin s fresh reading of Massacre at Paris which is often dismissed by critics as a bad tragedy presents the play as deliberately breaking the conventions of the tragic genre in order to enact a traumatic aesthetics that pulls its audience into one of the early modern period s most notorious collective traumatic events the massacre of French Huguenots in Paris in 1572 The chapters on Marlowe s six other plays similarly argue that throughout Marlowe s drama tragedy is held in tension with and disrupted by the aesthetics of trauma

How to Do Things with Narrative Jan Alber, Greta Olson, 2017-11-20 This volume combines narratological analyses with an investigation of the ideological ramifications of the use of narrative strategies The collected essays do not posit any intrinsic or stable connection between narrative techniques and world views Rather they demonstrate that world views are inevitably expressed through highly specific formal strategies This insight leads the contributors to investigate why and how particular narrative techniques are employed and under what conditions
