nontraditional sites of writing behavior But to date there has been relatively little concerted discussion within the writing field that focuses specifically on the fundamentally awkward relationship of writing theory and writing instruction This volume is the first to explicitly focus on the gap in the theory and practice that has emerged as a result of the field's growing professionalization The essays anthologized offer critiques of GWSI in light of the discipline's growing understanding of the contexts for writing and their rhetorical nature Writing from a wide range of cognitivist critical theoretical historical linguistic and philosophical perspectives contributors call into serious question basic tenets of contemporary writing instruction and provide a forum for articulating a sort of zeitgeist that seems to permeate many writing conferences but which has until recently not found a voice or a name

Producing Good Citizens Amy J. Wan, 2014-03-30 Recent global security threats economic instability and political uncertainty have placed great scrutiny on the requirements for U S citizenship The stipulation of literacy has long been one of these criteria In Producing Good Citizens Amy J Wan examines the historic roots of this phenomenon looking specifically to the period just before World War I up until the Great Depression During this time the United States witnessed a similar anxiety over the influx of immigrants economic uncertainty and global political tensions Early on educators bore the brunt of literacy training while also being charged with producing the right kind of citizens by imparting civic responsibility and a moral code for the workplace and society Literacy quickly became the credential to gain legal economic and cultural status In her study Wan defines three distinct pedagogical spaces for literacy training during the 1910s and 1920s Americanization and citizenship programs sponsored by the federal government union sponsored programs and first year university writing programs Wan also demonstrates how each literacy program had its own motivation the federal government desired productive citizens unions needed educated members to fight for labor reform and university educators looked to aid social mobility Citing numerous literacy theorists Wan analyzes the correlation of reading and writing skills to larger currents within American society She shows how early literacy training coincided with the demand for laborers during the rise of mass manufacturing while also providing an avenue to economic opportunity for immigrants This fostered a rhetorical link between citizenship productivity and patriotism Wan supplements her analysis with an examination of citizen training books labor newspapers factory manuals policy documents public deliberations on citizenship and literacy and other materials from the period to reveal the goal and rationale behind each program Wan relates the enduring bond of literacy and citizenship to current times by demonstrating the use of literacy to mitigate economic inequality and its lasting value to a productivity based society Today as in the past educators continue to serve as an integral part of the literacy training and citizen making process

Rhetoric and Reality James A. Berlin, 1987-02-26 Berlin here continues his unique history of American college composition begun in his Writing Instruction in Nineteenth Century Colleges 1984 turning now to the twentieth century In discussing the variety of rhetorics that have been used in writing classrooms Berlin introduces a taxonomy made up of three categories objective rhetorics subjective rhetorics and transactional rhetorics which are distinguished by the epistemology on which each is based He makes clear that these categories are not tied to a chronology but instead are to be found in the English department in one form or another during each decade of the century His historical treatment includes an examination of the formation of the English department the founding of the NCTE and its role in writing instruction the training of teachers of writing the effects of progressive education on writing instruction the General Education Movement the appearance of the CCCC the impact of Sputnik and today's literacy crisis

Contemporary Composition Studies Edith Babin, Kimberly Harrison, 1999-12-30 Composition studies is a rapidly growing and constantly changing field At present however graduate students new to the field and writing teachers who want to make new connections between theory and practice have little choice of current reference works that define key terms in composition studies and provide information about the scholars and researchers who have shaped and are shaping the discipline This book supplies this information in an easily accessible format and places both scholars and terms in the context of the field s development Included are alphabetically arranged entries for 108 individuals who have developed the field and 128 terms central to the discipline The first part of the book provides entries for leaders in composition studies Each entry identifies the areas in which the scholar has contributed most influentially to the field and provides both a chronological overview of the person s contributions and a bibliography of representative works The second part includes entries for terms that are problematic both for newcomers and for those already familiar with the discipline The entries for the terms show how the disciplinary context has shaped the ways in which they have been used The entries also indicate how established thinkers in composition studies and other disciplines have explained or defined the terms provide examples of the terms in context and list scholars often associated with them An appendix includes entries for scholars from other disciplines who have contributed to the field

The National Council of Teachers of English and Cold War Education Policies Curtis Mason, 2020-02-01 The launching of Sputnik in 1957 sparked an education movement that stressed the importance of curricular rigor and standardization as a means to improve education and bolster national defense Within six months of Sputnik s launch Congress passed the National Defense Education Act NDEA that approved an unprecedented amount of federal funding toward the math science and foreign language disciplines The teaching of English was left out and through the leadership of the National Council of Teachers of English NCTE the discipline maneuvered public relations and political connections in its quest to acquire federal funds In doing so the NCTE mimicked strategies that galvanized funding for math science and foreign language disciplines by arguing the importance of the teaching of English for national security and advocating for a teaching model that aligned with Cold War Era pedagogical trends These tactics marked a major shift in how the NCTE advocated for the teaching of English In the early twentieth century the organization embraced student centered education practices connected to the ideas of progressive educators This perspective continued with the creation and expansion of life adjustment education during the 1930s and 40s During this era many NCTE authors recommended this movement that advocated connecting education to future adult experiences Following Sputnik NCTE leaders supported content centered reforms Instead of curriculum recommendations based in discovering and fostering relevant student experiences the NCTE s focus became adjusting student learning to predefined skills it thought all students should possess This trend was supported by conceptions of Cold War education models including those advocated by their rival English organization the Modern Language

Association MLA The MLA had successfully worked with federal actors in attaining funding for foreign language training institutes and the NCTE's collaboration with the MLA represented a shift in adopting ideas it was previously opposed to promoting Despite their efforts the NCTE was not a part of NDEA reauthorization in 1961 the federal government led by U S Commissioner of Education Sterling McMurrin funded teacher training institutes for the study of English through a program called Project English The 1960s continued with the NCTE representing stronger content centered ideas before shifting in less than a decade as indicated by the materials produced by the 1966 AngloAmerican Conference on English at Dartmouth Here NCTE leaders reassessed their beliefs after meeting with British educators who advocated student centered curriculum models and reintroduced benefits of experiential education These ideas would manifest into studentcentered curriculum models during the late 1960s and 1970s
