Dion Boucicault Deirdre McFeely, 2012-04-12 Deirdre McFeely presents the first book length critical study of Dion Boucicault placing his Irish plays in the context of his overall career The book undertakes a detailed examination of the reception of the plays in the New York London Dublin theatre triangle which Boucicault inhabited Interpreting theatre history as a sociocultural phenomenon that closely approximates social history McFeely examines the different social and political worlds in which the plays were produced demonstrating that the complex politics of reception of the plays cannot be separated from the social and political implications of colonialism at that time The study argues for a shift in focus from the politics of the plays and their author to the politics of the auditorium and the press

or the politics of reception It is within that complex and shifting field of stage theatre and public media that Boucicault's performance as playwright actor and publicist is interpreted

Theatre Censorship David Thomas, David Carlton, Anne Etienne, 2007-11-01 Using previously unpublished material from the National Archives David Thomas David Carlton and Anne Etienne provide a new perspective on British cultural history Statutory censorship was first introduced in Britain by Sir Robert Walpole with his Licensing Act of 1737 Previously theatre censorship was exercised under the Royal Prerogative By giving the Lord Chamberlain statutory powers of theatre censorship Walpole ensured that confusion over the relationship between the Royal Prerogative and statute law would prevent any serious challenge to theatre censorship in Parliament until the twentieth century The authors place theatre censorship legislation and its attempted reform in their wider political context Sections outlining the political history of key periods explain why theatre censorship legislation was introduced in 1737 why attempts to reform the legislation failed in 1832 1909 and 1949 and finally succeeded in 1968 Opposition from Edward VII helped to prevent the abolition of theatre censorship in 1909 In 1968 theatre censorship was abolished despite opposition from Elizabeth II Lord Cobbold her Lord Chamberlain and Harold Wilson her Prime Minister There was strong support for theatre censorship on the part of commercial theatre managers who saw censorship as offering protection from vexatious prosecution A policy of inertia and deliberate obfuscation on the part of Home Office officials helped to prevent the abolition of theatre censorship legislation until 1968 It was only when playwrights directors critics audiences and politicians notably Roy Jenkins applied combined pressure that theatre censorship was finally abolished The volume concludes by exploring whether new forms of covert censorship have replaced the statutory theatre censorship abolished with the 1968 Theatres Act
