Making Of Canada:

Making Canada New Dean Irvine, Vanessa Lent, Bart Vautour, 2017-01-01 An examination of the connections between modernist writers and editorial activities Making Canada New draws links among new and old media collaborative labour emergent scholars and scholarships and digital modernisms In doing so the collection reveals that renovating modernisms does not need to depend on the fabrication of completely new modes of scholarship Rather it is the repurposing of already existing practices and combining them with others whether old or new print or digital that instigates a process of continuous renewal Critical to this process of renewal is the intermingling of print and digital research methods and the coordination of more popular modes of literary scholarship with less frequented ones such as bibliography textual studies and editing Making Canada New tracks the editorial renovation of modernism as a digital phenomenon while speaking to the continued production of print editions

The Making of Canada ,1997 The making of Canada, Ontario ,1996 Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada ,1929 Commerce Reports United States. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, 1916 The Making of Canada Arthur Granville Bradley, 1908 Canada's Residential Schools: Reconciliation Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada, 2015-12-09 Between 1867 and 2000 the Canadian government sent over 150 000 Aboriginal children to residential schools across the country Government officials and missionaries agreed that in order to civilize and Christianize Aboriginal children it was necessary to separate them from their parents and their home communities For children life in these schools was lonely and alien Discipline was harsh and daily life was highly regimented Aboriginal languages and cultures were denigrated and suppressed Education and technical training too often gave way to the drudgery of doing the chores necessary to make the schools self sustaining Child neglect was institutionalized and the lack of supervision created situations where students were prey to sexual and physical abusers Legal action by the schools former students led to the creation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada in 2008 The product of over six years of research the Commission's final report outlines the history and legacy of the schools and charts a pathway towards reconciliation Canada's Residential Schools Reconciliation documents the complexities challenges and possibilities of reconciliation by presenting the findings of public testimonies from residential school Survivors and others who participated in the TRC's national events and community hearings For many Aboriginal people reconciliation is foremost about healing families and communities and revitalizing Indigenous cultures languages spirituality laws and governance systems For governments building a respectful relationship involves dismantling a centuries old political and bureaucratic culture in which all too often policies and programs are still based on failed notions of assimilation For churches demonstrating long term commitment to reconciliation requires atoning for harmful actions in the residential schools respecting Indigenous spirituality and supporting Indigenous peoples struggles for justice and equity Schools must teach Canadian history in ways that foster mutual respect empathy and engagement All Canadian children and youth deserve to know what happened in the residential schools and to appreciate the rich history and collective knowledge of Indigenous peoples This volume also emphasizes the important role of public memory in the reconciliation process as well as the role of Canadian society including the corporate and non profit sectors the media and the sports community in reconciliation The Commission urges Canada to adopt the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples as a framework for reconciliation While Aboriginal peoples are victims of violence and discrimination they are also holders of Treaty Aboriginal and human rights and have a critical role to play in reconciliation All Canadians must understand how traditional First Nations Inuit and Métis approaches to resolving conflict repairing harm and restoring relationships can inform the reconciliation process The TRC's calls to action identify the concrete steps that must be taken to ensure that our children and grandchildren can live together in dignity peace and prosperity on these lands we now share

Canada's Residential Schools: The History, Part 2, 1939 to 2000 Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada, 2015-12-09 Between 1867 and 2000 the Canadian government sent over 150 000 Aboriginal children to residential schools across the country Government officials and missionaries agreed that in order to civilize and Christianize Aboriginal children it was necessary to separate them from their parents and their home communities For children life in these schools was lonely and alien Discipline was harsh and daily life was highly regimented Aboriginal languages and cultures were denigrated and suppressed Education and technical training too often gave way to the drudgery of doing the chores necessary to make the schools self sustaining Child neglect was institutionalized and the lack of supervision created situations where students were prey to sexual and physical abusers Legal action by the schools former students led to the creation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada in 2008 The product of over six years of research the Commission's final report outlines the history and legacy of the schools and charts a pathway towards reconciliation Canada's Residential Schools The History Part 2 1939 to 2000 carries the story of the residential school system from the end of the Great Depression to the closing of the last remaining schools in the late 1990s It demonstrates that the underfunding and unsafe living conditions that characterized the early history of the schools continued into an era of unprecedented growth and prosperity for most Canadians A miserly funding formula meant that into the late 1950s school meals fell short of the Canada Food Rules Overcrowding poor sanitation and a failure to adhere to fire safety rules were common problems throughout this period While government officials had come to view the schools as costly and inefficient the churches were reluctant to countenance their closure It was not until the late 1960s that the federal government finally wrested control of the system away from the churches Government plans to turn First Nations education over to the provinces met with opposition from Aboriginal organizations that were seeking Indian Control of Indian Education Following parent led occupation of a school in Alberta many of the remaining schools came under Aboriginal administration The closing of the schools coincided with a growing number of convictions of former staff members on charges of sexually abusing students These trials revealed the degree to which sexual abuse at the schools had been covered up in the past Former students who came to refer to themselves as Survivors established regional and national organizations and provided much of the leadership for the campaign that led to the federal government issuing in 2008 an apology to the former students and their families

The Global Politics of Poverty in Canada Will Langford,2021-01-16 In the 1960s and 1970s in the midst of the Cold War and an international decolonization movement development advocates believed that poverty could be ended at home and abroad The Global Politics of Poverty in Canada explores the relationship between poverty democracy and development during this remarkable period Will Langford analyzes three Canadian development programs that unfolded on local regional and international scales He reveals the interconnections of anti poverty activism carried out by the Company of Young Canadians among M tis in northern Alberta and francophones in Montreal by the Cape Breton Development Corporation and by Canadian University Service Overseas in Tanzania In dialogue with the New Left liberal reformers committed to development programs they believed would empower the poor to confront their own poverty and thereby foster a more meaningful democracy However democracy and development proved to be fundamentally contested and development programs stopped short of amending capitalist social relations and the inequalities they engendered The Global Politics of Poverty in Canada explores how Canadians engaged in informal and formal politics in the course of their everyday lives locally and transnationally Langford provides an enduring record of otherwise fleeting anti poverty programs and their effects the lived activism and opinions of development workers and ordinary people

Canada James M. Roth,2024-09-18 The history of Canada can seem like a subject as large and expansive as the country itself and for those of us who haven t attended a history class in a while it may just feel too big to tackle Academic histories full of footnotes and jargon aren t for everyone but everyone deserves to know the history of the country they call home Direct but never dry historian James M Roth starts at the country s geographical beginnings at the end of the last Ice Age and weaves Canada s tale from there From contrasting early New World civilization against established Old World tradition contextualizing Indigenous history within the rest of Canadian history explaining today s complex relationships between English and French Canadians with a play by play analysis of events giving meaning to countless social and political movements by looking at the bigger picture and covering everything else in between in commuter length chapters
