A History of Radioecology Patrick C. Kangas,2022-12-26 This book presents a history of radioecology from World War II through to the critical years of the Cold War finishing with a discussion of recent developments and future implications for the field Drawing on a vast array of primary sources the book reviews synthesizes and discusses the implications of the ecological research supported by the Atomic Energy Commission AEC of the United States government from World War II to the early 1970s This was a critical period in the history of ecology characterized by a transition from the older largely descriptive studies of communities of plants and animals to the modern form of the science involving functional studies of energy flow and mineral cycling in ecosystems This transition was in large part due to the development of radioecology which was a by product of the Cold War and the need to understand and predict the consequences of a nuclear war that was planned but has never occurred The book draws on important case studies such as the Pacific Proving Grounds the Nevada Test Site El Verde in Puerto Rico the Brookhaven National Laboratory and recent events such as the nuclear disasters at Chernobyl and Fukushima By revisiting studies and archived information from the Cold War era this book offers lessons from the history of radioecology to provide background and perspective for understanding possible present day impacts from issues of radiation risks associated with nuclear power generation and waste disposal Post Cold War developments in radioecology will be also reviewed and contrasted with the AEC supported ecology research for further perspectives This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of radioecology environmental pollution environmental technology bioscience and environmental history

Bombs over Bikini Connie Goldsmith, 2014-04-01 In 1946 as part of the Cold War arms race the US military launched a program to test nuclear bombs in the Marshall Islands of the Pacific Ocean From 1946 until 1958 the military detonated sixty seven nuclear bombs over the region s Bikini and Enewetak Atolls The twelfth bomb called Bravo became the world s first nuclear disaster It sent a toxic cloud of radiation over Rongelap Atoll and other nearby inhabited islands The testing was intended to advance scientific knowledge about nuclear bombs and radiation but it had much more far reaching effects Some of the islanders suffered burns cancers birth defects and other medical tragedies as a result of radiation poisoning Many of the Marshallese were resettled on other Pacific islands or in the United States They and their descendants cannot yet return to Bikini which remains contaminated by radiation And while the United States claims it is now safe to resettle Rongelap only a few construction workers live there on a temporary basis For Bombs over Bikini author Connie Goldsmith researched government documents military film footage and other primary source documents to tell the story of the world s first nuclear disaster You ll meet the people who planned the test operations the Marshall Islanders who lost their homes and suffered from radiation illnesses and those who have worked to hold the US government accountable for catastrophically poor planning Was the new knowledge about nuclear bombs and radiation worth the cost in human suffering You decide
