Reclaiming The Past Landmarks Of Womens History:

Reclaiming the Past Page Putnam Miller, 1992 As editor Page Putnam Miller explains Historic structures can be a catalyst for studying and remembering the past Reclaiming the Past integrates recent developments in women s history and historic preservation in order to illuminate the historic significance of many structures and sites associated with the lives of women in the United States The homes of Willa Cather Sarah Orne Jewett Zora Neale Hurston Clara Barton and Susan B Anthony Dumbarton Oaks designed by landscape architect Beatrix Farrand the Madame C J Walker Building in Indianapolis home of the Walker Manufacturing Company Wesleyan Chapel at Seneca Falls New York site of the 1848 Women s Rights Convention the Shirtwaist Triangle Factory Hull House these represent only a sampling of the variety of landmarks and resources examined here In an introductory chapter Page Putnam Miller outlines the urgent task of identifying and preserving these historic sites The contributors then focus on seven arenas of activity architecture arts community education politics religion and work We discover that as activists preservationists designers and architects women have long been involved in historic preservation as well as in the thoughtful design of domestic space the home itself As artists and writers women often interpreted their household and immediate surroundings Women have also left their mark on material culture through community activism religious and educational activity and work Less than 5 percent of national parks national historic landmarks and state historic sites commemorate women s life and activity in the United States The use of historic structures to reconstruct and understand their accomplishments has garnered relatively little attention This volume is an effort to stimulate the recovery and use of these resources to grasp the spirit and the passions that animate women s history The contributors are Gail Lee Dubrow Joan Hoff Barbara J Howe Helen Lefkowitz Horowitz Barbara Melosh Jean R Soderlund and Lynn Y Weiner BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved

Restoring Women's History Through Historic Preservation Gail Lee Dubrow, Jennifer B. Goodman, 2003-01-28 This essay collection draws upon work presented at three national conferences on women and historic preservation held at Bryn Mawr College in 1994 Arizona State University in 1997 and at Mount Vernon College in 2000 Landmarks of American Women's History Page Putnam Miller, 2004-02-19 Throughout history women have often worked in informal ways and in modest conditions frequently without monuments or grand examples of architecture preserved to commemorate their accomplishments Landmarks of American Women s History describes the sites that represent a wide variety of women s experiences and accomplishments Making the Invisible Visible Leonie Sandercock, 2023-04-28 The history of planning is much more according to these authors than the recorded progress of planning as a discipline and a profession These essays counter the mainstream narrative of rational scientific development with alternative histories that reveal hitherto invisible planning practices and agendas While the official story of planning celebrates the state and its traditions of city building and regional development these stories focus on previously unacknowledged actors and the noir side of planning Through a variety of critical lenses feminist postmodern and postcolonial the essays examine a broad range of histories relevant to the preservation and planning professions Some contributors uncover indigenous planning traditions that have been erased from the record African American and Native American traditions for example Other contributors explore new themes themes of gendered spaces and racist practices of planning as an ordering tool a kind of spatial police of bodies cities and social order influenced by Foucault Lefebvre and others and of resistance This scrutiny of the class race gender ethnic or ideological biases of ideas and practices inherent in the notion of planning as a modernist social technology clearly points to the inadequacy of modernist planning histories Making the Invisible Visible redefines planning as the regulation of the physicality sociality and spatiality of the city Its histories provide the foundation of a new alternative planning paradigm for the multicultural cities of the future The history of planning is much more according to these authors than the recorded progress of planning as a discipline and a profession These essays counter the mainstream narrative of rational scientific development with alternative histories that re

Girl's Schooling During The Progressive Era Karen Graves,2014-06-03 This work traces the impact of a differentiated curriculum on girls education in St Louis public schools from 1870 to 1930 Its central argument is that the premise upon which a differentiated curriculum is founded that schooling ought to differ among students in order prepare each for his or her place in the social order actually led to academic decline The attention given to the intersection of gender race and social class and its combined effect on girls schooling places this text in the new wave of critical historical scholarship in the field of educational research

Shadowed Ground Kenneth E. Foote, 2013-12-06 Winner John Brinckerhoff Jackson Prize Association of American Geographers 1997 Shadowed Ground explores how and why Americans have memorialized or not the sites of tragic and violent events spanning three centuries of history and every region of the country For this revised edition Kenneth Foote has written a new concluding chapter that looks at the evolving responses to recent acts of violence and terror including the destruction of the Branch Davidian compound at Waco Texas the Oklahoma City bombing the Columbine High School massacre and the terrorist attacks of 9 11
