Changing Climate, Changing Worlds Meredith Welch-Devine,Anne Sourdriil,Brian J. Burke,2020-04-07 This book explores how individuals and communities perceive and understand climate change using their observations of change in the world around them Because processes of climatic change operate at spatial and temporal scales that differ from those of everyday practice the phenomenon can be difficult to understand However flora and fauna

which are important natural and cultural resources for human communities do respond to the pressures of environmental change Humans in turn observe and adapt to those responses even when they may not understand their causes Much of the discussion about human experiences of our changing climate centers on disasters and extreme events but we argue that a focus on the everyday on the microexperiences of change has the advantage of revealing how people see feel and make sense of climate change in their own lives The chapters of this book are drawn from Asia Europe Africa and South and North America They use ethnographic inquiry to understand local knowledge and perceptions of climate change and the social and ecological changes inextricably intertwined with it Together they illustrate the complex process of coming to know climate change show some of the many ways that climate change and our responses to it inflict violence and point to promising avenues for moving toward just and authentic collaborative responses

Red Flags and Lace Coiffes Charles R. Menzies, 2011-08-01 This book explores the question of why fishing communities continue their struggle to survive despite often calamitous changes in ecology and economy Using historical ethnography as a lens through which to understand how fishers of the Bigouden region of France and their families have reinvented themselves Menzies argues that local identity plays an important role in their perseverance as global capitalist pressures continually force them to reorganize or disappear entirely Touching on many concepts that are fundamental to anthropology culture identity kinship work political economy and globalization and filled with personal stories and warmth this ethnography will be a welcome teaching tool for instructors and an enticing read for students Nova
