Abstract: A series of experiments were conducted to determine the effect of a three-dimensional (3D) display on the performance of a two-dimensional (2D) task. The results showed that the 3D display significantly improved performance on the 2D task. The results also showed that the 3D display significantly improved the accuracy of the 2D task. The results suggest that the 3D display is a useful tool for improving performance on 2D tasks.
