Short Account Of My Public Life:

Educating India Amit K. Suman, 2025-01-30 The book delves into the educational challenges that indigenous groups faced during the late 18th and 19th centuries and examines how they responded to these challenges and threats. It centres on the historical evolution of education in the Bengal Presidency and the North Western Provinces with a particular emphasis on the roles of pandits, maulvis and other influential figures within indigenous society. Up until the 19th century, questions about the nature of knowledge, the most effective methods of transmitting it and the societal responsibilities toward educating the youth were not monopolized by any single entity. In most of Europe, private actors rather than the state assumed the role of the dominant authority controlling the definition and dissemination of knowledge. This trend gradually marginalized local knowledge and traditional ways of life. In contrast, the colonial state in India did not encourage local agencies to actively participate in the process of knowledge formation. Instead, under colonialism, indigenous institutions and educators became agents of the state. It is important to clarify the term indigenous in this context. Here, it refers to all educational institutions that served the local population. Taught pre-British curricula were staffed by Indian or native teachers and initially received patronage from local elites. However, over time, colonial authorities began providing funding and assuming patronage of these institutions, which subsequently led to changes in their structures. Secularism, Islam and Education in India, 1830-1910

Robert Ivermee, 2015-10-06 During the nineteenth century, British officials in India decided that the education system should be exclusively secular. Drawing on sources from public and private archives, Ivermee presents a study of British Muslim negotiations over the secularization of colonial Indian education and on the changing nature of secularism across space and time. The Public Life of Thomas Cooper, 1783-1839 Dumas Malone, 1926 The Muslim Heritage of Bengal agriculture and the treatment of disease to reconstruct India's economy and to transfigure India's intellectual life all to create a stable rationalized and profitable colony under British domination But Prakash points out that science also represented freedom of thought and that for the British to use it to practice despotism was a deeply contradictory enterprise Seizing on this contradiction many of the colonized elite began to seek parallels and precedents for scientific thought in India's own intellectual history creating a hybrid form of knowledge that combined western ideas with local cultural and religious understanding Their work disrupted accepted notions of colonizer versus colonized civilized versus savage modern versus traditional and created a form of modernity that was at once western and indigenous Throughout Prakash draws on major and minor figures on both sides of the colonial divide including Mahatma Gandhi Jawaharlal Nehru the nationalist historian and novelist Romesh Chunder Dutt Prafulla Chandra Ray author of A History of Hindu Chemistry Rudyard Kipling Lord Dalhousie and John Stuart Mill With its deft combination of rich historical detail and vigorous new arguments and interpretations Another Reason will recast how we understand the contradictory and colonial genealogy of the modern nation
