Making Markets:

Making Markets Mitchel Y. Abolafia, 2001-10-30 In the wake of million dollar scandals brought about by Michael Milken Ivan Boesky and their like Wall Street seems like the province of rampant individualism operating at the outermost extremes of self interest and greed But this Mitchel Abolafia suggests would be a case of missing the real culture of the Street for the characters who dominate the financial news Making Markets an ethnography of Wall Street culture offers a more complex picture of how the market and its denizens work Not merely masses of individuals striving independently markets appear here as socially constructed institutions in which the behavior of traders is suspended in a web of customs norms and structures of control Within these structures we see the actions that led to the Drexel Burnham and Salomon Brothers debacles not as bizarre aberrations but as mere exaggerations of behavior accepted on the Street Abolafia looks at three subcultures that coexist in the world of Wall Street the stock bond and futures markets Through interviews anecdotes and the author's skillful analysis we see how traders and New York Stock Exchange specialists negotiate the perpetual tension between short term self interest and long term self restraint that marks their respective communities and how the temptation toward excess spurs market activity We also see the complex relationships among those market communities why for instance NYSE specialists resent the freedoms permitted over the counter bond traders and futures traders Making Markets shows us that what propels Wall Street is not a fundamental human drive or instinct but strategies enacted in the context of social relationships cultural idioms and institutions a cycle that moves between phases of unbridled self interest and collective self restraint

Making Markets More Inclusive K. McKague, M. Siddiquee, 2014-07-24 Most studies of doing business at the bottom of the economic pyramid focus on viewing the poor as consumers as micro entrepreneurs or as potential employees of local companies Almost no analysis focuses on the poor as primary producers of agricultural commodities a striking omission given that primary producers are by far the largest segment of the working age population in developing economies Making Markets More Inclusive bridges the management literature with original research on agricultural value chains in developing and emerging economies This exciting work is the first to delve into the skills capabilities strategies and approaches needed for inclusive value chain development McKague shows how NGOs and companies can connect poor producers in developing economies with the right markets to better create social and economic impact He also analyzes one of the leading agricultural value chain initiatives in the world which is being replicated by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation in several different value chains in Malawi Tanzania Ghana India and Mali Want more Check out these compelling videos which provide a glimpse into the stories and examples used throughout the book Video Trailer for Making Markets More Inclusive Farmer Training Kallani Rani increased the productivity of her cows become a cattle feed seller in her village Chapter 6 and opened a fresh milk canteen in her local market Chapter 7 She now trains other women farmers and works to improve opportunities for women in her community Chapter 5 Animal Health Care Services governmental technologies such as audit cost benefit analysis performance objectives and the consumer were used to make this reality operable In doing so he argues that this shift should be viewed as part of the broader restructuring of Australian society which has facilitated the transference of economic and policy making power from the public to the private

Making Markets in the Welfare State Jane R. Gingrich, 2011-06-23 Over the past three decades market reforms have transformed public services such as education health and care of the elderly Whereas previous studies present markets as having similar and largely non political effects this book shows that political parties structure markets in diverse ways to achieve distinct political aims Left wing attempts to sustain the legitimacy of the welfare state are compared with right wing wishes to limit the state and empower the private sector Examining a broad range of countries time periods and policy areas Jane R Gingrich helps readers make sense of the complexity of market reforms in the industrialized world The use of innovative multi case studies and in depth interviews with senior European policymakers enriches the debate and brings clarity to this multifaceted topic Scholars and students working on the policymaking process in this central area will be interested in this new conceptualization of market reform

Markets Patrik Aspers, 2013-05-08 Our lives have gradually become dominated by markets They are not only at the heart of capitalistic economies all over the world but also central in public debates This insightful book brings together existing knowledge on markets from sociology economics and anthropology and systematically investigates the different forms of markets we encounter daily in our social lives Aspers starts by defining what a market actually is analyzing its essential elements as well as its necessary preconditions and varied consequences An important theme in the book is that a whole host of markets are embedded within one other and in social life at large and Aspers discusses these in the context of other forms of economic coordination such as networks and organizations Combining theory with empirical examples the book cuts to the core of understanding how different markets function the role they have played in history and how they come into being This accessible and theoretically rich book will be essential reading for upper level students seeking to make sense of markets and their complex role in social life
