Moving into Adolescence Roberta G. Simmons,2017-07-05 From the sociological point of view adolescence traditionally has been described as a period of physical maturity and social immaturity Adolescents reach physical adulthood before they are capable of functioning well in adult social roles The disjunction between physical capabilities and socially allowed independence and power and the concurrent status ambiguities are viewed as stressful for the adolescent in modern Western society It has been assumed that the need to disengage from parents during these years will result in high levels of rebellion and parent child conflict Moving into Adolescence follows students as they make a major life course transition from childhood into early adolescence Substantial controversy has been generated within the behavioral sciences concerning the difficulty of adolescence as a transitional period On the one hand there are those who characterize the period as an exceptionally and necessarily stressful time in the life course On the other hand many investigators treat this view of adolescence as their straw man To them the supposed tumult of adolescence is just that supposed and mythical The purpose of this book is to study the transition from childhood into early and middle adolescence in order to investigate change along a wide variety of psychosocial dimensions with a particular focus on the self image The authors investigate the impact of timing of pubertal change and also the movement from an intimate elementary school context into a large scale secondary school environment The first major movement into a large scale organizational context may cause difficulty for the child as may the dramatic changes of puberty In addition gender differences and changes in gender differences are studied Both short and long term consequences of transition are examined focusing on is the role of pubertal change and school transition Moving Into Adolescence Roberta G. Trends in Psychotherapy Research M. E. Abelian,2006 Psychotherapy is the treatment of mental and emotional disorders using psychological methods Psychotherapy thus does not include physiological interventions such as drug therapy or electroconvulsive therapy although it may be used in combination with such methods Behaviour therapy aims to help the patient eliminate undesirable habits or irrational fears through conditioning Techniques include systematic desensitisation particularly for the treatment of clients with irrational anxieties or fears and aversive conditioning which uses negative stimuli to end bad habits Humanistic therapy tends to be more optimistic basing its treatment on the theory that individuals have a natural inclination to strive toward self fulfilment Therapists such as Carl Rogers and Abraham Maslow used a highly interactive client therapist relationship compelling clients to realise exactly what they are saying or how they are behaving in order to foster a sense of self awareness Cognitive therapies try to show the client that certain usually negative thoughts are irrational with the goal of restructuring such thoughts into positive constructive ideas Such methods include rational emotive therapy where the therapist argues with the client about his negative ideas and cognitive restructuring therapy in which the therapist works with the client to set attainable goals Other forms of therapy stress helping patients to examine their own ideas about themselves
