Sue William Silverman

Red Delta Fighting For Life At The End Of The Colorado River:

Red Delta Charles Bergman, 2002 The region was sparsely populated by farmers and indigenous people Its wildlife was little known And it was in Mexico invisible to North Americans Thus after the Water Treaty of 1944 was signed by the United States and Mexico the flow of the Colorado River diminished to a trickle in the Mexican delta transforming a fertile land of green lagoons into a dry wasteland And nobody seemed to care The Mexican delta of the Colorado River is becoming one of the most remarkable environmental stories on the continent Red Delta combines the powerful story of the delta s restored natural diversity with clear information on the river of law that governs water allotments to it U S 90% Mexico 10% presenting a story of hope and recovery Whether in search of a rare and endangered bird sifting through the sands of the delta s badlands for fossils or visiting a village of the deltas impoverished Cucapa people Bergman helps us see the variety and abundance of life in this once forgotten place

Dead Pool James Lawrence Powell, 2023-11-15 Where will the water come from to sustain the great desert cities of Las Vegas Los Angeles and Phoenix In a provocative exploration of the past present and future of water in the West James Lawrence Powell begins at Lake Powell the vast reservoir that has become an emblem of this story At present Lake Powell is less than half full Bathtub rings ten stories tall encircle its blue water boat ramps and marinas lie stranded and useless To refill it would require surplus water but there is no surplus burgeoning populations and thirsty crops consume every drop of the Colorado River Add to this picture the looming effects of global warming and drought and the scenario becomes bleaker still Dead Pool featuring rarely seen historical photographs explains why America built the dam that made Lake Powell and others like it and then allowed its citizens to become dependent on their benefits which were always temporary Writing for a wide audience Powell shows us exactly why an urgent threat during the first half of the twenty first century will come not from the rising of the seas but from the falling of the reservoirs Where will the water come from to sustain the great desert cities of Las Vegas Los Angeles and Phoenix In a provocative exploration of the past present and future of water in the West James Lawrence Powell begins at Lake Powell the vast reservoir t

Where the River Ends Shaylih Muehlmann, 2013-05-23 Living in the northwest of Mexico the Cucap people have relied on fishing as a means of subsistence for generations but in the last several decades that practice has been curtailed by water scarcity and government restrictions The Colorado River once met the Gulf of California near the village where Shaylih Muehlmann conducted ethnographic research but now as a result of a treaty 90 percent of the water from the Colorado is diverted before it reaches Mexico The remaining water is increasingly directed to the manufacturing industry in Tijuana and Mexicali Since 1993 the Mexican government has denied the Cucap people fishing rights on environmental grounds While the Cucap have continued to fish in the Gulf of California federal inspectors and the Mexican military are pressuring them to stop The government maintains that the Cucap are not sufficiently indigenous to warrant preferred fishing rights Like many indigenous people in Mexico most Cucap people no longer speak their indigenous language they are highly integrated into nonindigenous social networks Where the River Ends is a moving look at how the Cucap people have experienced and responded to the diversion of the Colorado River and the Mexican state s attempts to regulate the environmental crisis that followed

Power and Control in the Imperial Valley Benny J Andrés,2014-11-27 Power and Control in the Imperial Valley examines the evolution of irrigated farming in the Imperial Mexicali Valley an arid desert straddling the California Baja California border Bisected by the international boundary line the valley drew American investors determined to harness the nearby Colorado River to irrigate a million acres on both sides of the border The conquest of the environment was a central theme in the history of the valley Colonization in the valley began with the construction of a sixty mile aqueduct from the Colorado River in California through Mexico Initially Mexico held authority over water delivery until settlers persuaded Congress to construct the All American Canal Control over land and water formed the basis of commercial agriculture and in turn enabled growers to use the state to procure inexpensive plentiful immigrant workers

Fearless Confessions Sue William Silverman,2010-01-25 Everyone has a story to tell Fearless Confessions is a guidebook for people who want to take possession of their lives by putting their experiences down on paper or in a Web site or e book Enhanced with illustrative examples from many different writers as well as writing exercises this guide helps writers navigate a range of issues from craft to ethics to marketing and will be useful to both beginners and more accomplished writers The rise of interest in memoir recognizes the power of the genre to move and affect not just individual readers but society at large Sue William Silverman covers traditional writing topics such as metaphor theme plot and voice and also includes chapters on trusting memory and cultivating the courage to tell one s truth in the face of forces from family members to the media who would prefer that people with inconvenient pasts and views remain silent Silverman an award winning memoirist draws upon her own personal and professional experience to provide an essential resource for transforming life into words that matter Fearless Confessions is an atlas that contains maps to the remarkable places in each person s life that have yet to be explored

Unreal City Judith Nies,2014-04-08 An epic struggle over land water and power is erupting in the American West and the halls of Washington DC It began when a 4 000 square mile area of Arizona desert called Black Mesa was divided between the Hopi and Navajo tribes To the outside world it was a land struggle between two fractious Indian tribes to political insiders and energy corporations it was a divide and conquer play for the 21 billion tons of coal beneath Black Mesa Today that coal powers cheap electricity for Los Angeles a new water aqueduct into Phoenix and the neon dazzle of Las Vegas Journalist and historian Judith Nies has been tracking this story for nearly four decades She follows the money and tells us the true story of wealth and water mendacity and corruption at the highest levels of business and government Amid the backdrop of the breathtaking desert landscape Unreal City shows five cultures colliding Hopi Navajo global energy corporations Mormons and US government agencies resulting in a battle over resources and the future of the West Las Vegas may attract 39 million visitors a year but the tourists mesmerized by the dancing water fountains at the Bellagio don t ask where the water comes from They don't see a city with the nation's highest rates of foreclosure unemployment and suicide They don't see the astonishing drop in the water level of Lake Mead where Sin City gets 90 percent of its water supply Nies shows how the struggle over Black Mesa lands is an example of a global phenomenon in which giant transnational corporations have the power to separate indigenous people from their energy rich lands with the help of host governments Unreal City explores how and why resources have been taken from native lands what it means in an era of climate change and why in this city divorced from nature the only thing more powerful than money is water Endangerment,

Biodiversity and Culture Fernando Vidal, Nélia Dias, 2015-06-19 The notion of Endangerment stands at the heart of a network of concepts values and practices dealing with objects and beings considered threatened by extinction and with the procedures aimed at preserving them Usually animated by a sense of urgency and citizenship identifying endangered entities involves evaluating an impending threat and opens the way for preservation strategies Endangerment Biodiversity and Culture looks at some of the fundamental ways in which this process involves science but also more than science not only data and knowledge and institutions but also affects and values Focusing on an endangerment sensibility it encapsulates tensions between the normative and the utilitarian the natural and the cultural The chapters situate that specifically modern sensibility in historical perspective and examine central aspects of its recent and present forms This timely volume offers the most cutting edge insights into the Environmental Humanities for researchers working in Environmental Studies History Anthropology Sociology and Science and Technology Studies The Ribbon of Green Robert H. Webb, S. A.

Leake, Raymond M. Turner, 2007 Woody wetlands constitute a relatively small but extremely important part of the landscape in the southwestern United States These riparian habitats support more than one third of the region's vascular plant species are home to a variety of wildlife and provide essential havens for dozens of migratory animals Because of their limited size and disproportionately high biological value the goal of protecting wetland environments frequently takes priority over nearly all other habitat types In The Ribbon of Green hydrologists Robert H Webb and Stanley A Leake and botanist Raymond M Turner examine the factors that affect the stability of woody riparian vegetation one of the largest components of riparian areas Such factors include the diversion of surface water flood control and the excessive use of groundwater Combining repeat photography with historical context and information on species composition they document more than 140 years of change Contrary to the common assumption of widespread losses of this type of ecosystem the authors show that vegetation has increased on many river reaches as a result of flood control favorable climatic conditions and large winter floods that encourage ecosystem disturbance germination and the establishment of species in newly generated openings Bringing well documented and accessible insights to the ecological study of wetlands this book will influence our perception of change in riparian ecosystems and how riparian restoration is practiced in the Southwest and it will serve as an important reference in courses on plant ecology riparian ecology and ecosystem management Biodiversity, Ecosystems, and Conservation in Northern Mexico Jean-Luc E. Cartron, Gerardo Ceballos, Richard Stephen Felger, 2005-08-25 This book describes the biodiversity and biogeography of northern Mexico documents the biological importance of regional ecosystems and the impacts of human land use on the conservation status of plants and wildlife It should become the standard source document for the conservation status of species and ecosystems in this region which is of unusual biological interest because of its high biodiversity and highly varied landscape and biological zonation Comeback Wolves Gary Wockner, Gregory McNamee, SueEllen Campbell, 2005 Delves into the spirit of the wolf dilemma through a collection of essays and poems from some of the Rocky Mountain region's most prolific writers Authors such as Susan J. Tweit, Craig Childs, Pam Houston, John Nichols, Kent Nelson, Rick Bass, Stephen Trimble, and Laura Pritchett have contributed works specifically written for this compilation which creates a forum for writers to voice their opinions, hopes, and concerns for the reintroduction of wolves in Colorado Forward by Mark Udall, U.S. Representative, Colorado's 2nd Congressional District
