Models Of Psychological Space Psychometric Developmental And Experimental Approaches:

Models of Psychological Space John Eliot, 2012-12-06 Models of Psychological Space begins the reformulation of the construct of psychological space by bringing together in one volume a sampling of theoretical models from the psychometric developmental and experimental approaches The author also discusses five general issues which cut across these three approaches namely age related differences sex related differences trainability imagery processing solutions and the effect of stimulus dimensionality upon spatial performance Models of Psychological Space provides an overview of a significant construct which has many researchable ideas and which should be of interest to scholars from a wide range of disciplines

Spatial Schemas and Abstract Thought Merideth Gattis, 2003 Proposes the means by which spatial structures might be adapted for nonspatial purposes and it considers alternatives to spatial coding as a basis for abstract thought

Development of Mental Representation Irving E. Sigel, 2013-06-17 There is a general and extensive literature in the development of representational thought and symbolic processes because of its centrality in human evolution However the umbrella of science and its method does not necessarily lead to a coherent conceptual model or agreements among scholars These basic differences among various disciplines have led to the creation of new and exciting realms of research This book considers how representational or symbolic thought develops for children s use in a wide array of these circumstances

Cognitive Effects of Multimedia Learning Zheng, Robert Z., 2008-12-31 This book identifies the role and function of multimedia in learning through a collection of research studies focusing on cognitive functionality Provided by publisher Language and Body in Place and Space Kuniyoshi

Kataoka,2023-05-18 Drawing on the author s experience as a sociolinguist and a mountain climber this book shows how the expertise and affect laden experience of Japanese rock climbers can be illuminated through linguistic methods and theories Through a detailed investigation of multimodal interaction among climbers the book explores a number of significant sociolinguistic and linguistic anthropological themes including spatial frames of reference intersubjectivity chronotopic configurations and poetic formations of talk In doing so it presents climbing as a condensed locus of human interactions in which the integrated analysis of semiotic processes brings to light a new set of relationships between humans and their surroundings Grounded in an extended and focused participation in rock climbing activities and interviews with other climbers Kuniyoshi Kataoka examines the assemblage of semiotic resources including the language the body and the space mediated by their climbing equipment and the surrounding environment The result is a showcase of interdisciplinary multimodal approaches to climbing discourse analysis in and around the gravity sensitive zone ranging from expert climbers instruction to novices gossip and narratives on near death experiences to a multi participant discussion of a critical accident As well as demonstrating how language reflects extraordinary experiences on the vertical plane the findings also offer a chance to learn more about climbing which is attracting a growing number of participants and competitors worldwide

Visuospatial Reasoning Kay Owens,2014-11-07 This book develops the theoretical perspective on visuospatial reasoning in ecocultural contexts granting insights on how the language gestures and representations of different cultures reflect visuospatial reasoning in context For a number of years two themes in the field of mathematics education have run parallel with each other with only a passing acquaintance These two areas are the psychological perspective on visuospatial reasoning and ecocultural perspectives on mathematics education This volume examines both areas of research and explores the intersection of these powerful ideas In addition there has been a growing interest in sociocultural aspects of education and in particular that of Indigenous education in the field of mathematics education There has not however been a sound analysis of how environmental and cultural contexts impact visuospatial reasoning although it was noted as far back as the 1980s when Alan Bishop developed his duality of visual processing and interpreting visual information This book provides this analysis and in so doing not only articulates new and worthwhile lines of research but also uncovers and makes real a variety of useful professional approaches in teaching school mathematics With a renewed interest in visuospatial reasoning in the mathematics education community this volume is extremely timely and adds significantly to current literature on the topic

Maps and Mapping in Children's Literature Nina Goga,Bettina Kümmerling-Meibauer,2017-08-15 Maps and Mapping in Children s Literature is the first comprehensive study that investigates the representation of maps in children s books as well as the impact of mapping on the depiction of landscapes seascapes and cityscapes in children s literature The chapters in this volume pursue a comparative approach as they represent a wide spectrum of diverse genres and national children s literatures by examining a wealth of children s books from Canada Denmark Germany Italy Norway Russia the

United Kingdom and the USA The theoretical and methodological approaches range from literary studies developmental psychology maps and geography literacy ecocriticism historical contextualization with both new historicist and political historical leanings and intermediality to materialist cartographies cultural studies island studies and genre studies By this this volume aims at embedding children s literature in a broader field of literary and cultural studies thus situating children s literature research within a general context of literary theory
