Modern Meat:

Meat Planet Benjamin Aldes Wurgaft, 2020-10-13 In 2013 a Dutch scientist unveiled the world's first laboratory created hamburger. Since then the idea of producing meat not from live animals but from carefully cultured tissues has spread like wildfire through the media. Meanwhile cultured meat researchers race against population growth and climate change in an effort to make sustainable protein. Meat Planet explores the quest to generate meat in the lab, a substance sometimes called cultured meat, and asks what it means to imagine that this is the future of food. Neither an advocate nor a critic of cultured meat, Benjamin Aldes Wurgaft spent five years researching the phenomenon. In Meat Planet he reveals how debates about lab-grown meat reach beyond debates about food, examining the links between appetite, growth, and capitalism. Could satiating the growing appetite for meat actually lead to our undoing? Are we simply using one technology to undo the damage caused by another? Like all problems in our food system, the meat problem is not merely a problem of production. It is intrinsically social and political, and it demands that we examine questions of justice and desirable modes of living in a shared and finite world. Benjamin Wurgaft tells a story that could utterly transform the way we think of animals, the way we relate to farmland, the way we use water, and the way we think about population and our fragile ecosystem's capacity to sustain life. He argues that even if cultured meat does not succeed, it functions much like science fiction as a crucial mirror that we can hold up to our contemporary fleshy dysfunctions.

52nd International Congress of Meat Science and Technology Declan Troy, Rachel Pearce, Briege Byrne, Joseph Kerry, 2023-08-28 This book contains over 300 offered papers in addition to 4 papers from invited speakers presented at the 52nd International Congress of Meat Science and Technology held in Dublin, Ireland from 13-18 August 2006. Under the theme of harnessing and exploiting global opportunities, areas covered in the congress included meat quality encompassing genomics and biotechnology, animal production and production systems, muscle biology and biochemistry, meat safety, meat processing and packaging technology, consumer topics, and meat and health. A new approach this year was to address specific hot topics important to the industry and meat scientists, in particular electrical stimulation and new instrumental methods for evaluation of meat quality characteristics. These proceedings reflect the truly global nature of meat research and give an insight into the current research issues for the industry.

Origins of Cattle Traction and the Making of Early Civilisations in North China Minghao Lin, 2022-09-13 This book is the first to apply systematic palaeopathological, archaeological, and historical investigations using bones as a focus, as well as other supporting lines of information to Chinese osteological materials, in order to answer the question about the origins of cattle labour. Structurally, this monograph flows from an introduction and review of previous scholarship and questions through employed theory and developed methods to analyses of archaeological materials, and finally finishes by overall discussion and closing remarks. Topics covered in this monograph include the significance of the study of cattle traction in North China, understanding and research into cattle traction within history, art, and archaeology, and identifying traction in cattle bones. The author also uses the Pathological Index refined PIR and morphometrics to test the reliability of both methods in identifying traction in cattle bones The author applies both methods to archaeological sites in the Yellow River region This book is of interest to researchers studying the Late Bronze Age and zooarchaeology Animals and Modern Cultures Adrian Franklin, 1999-03-30 The dramatic transformation of relationships between humans and animals in the 20th century are investigated in this fascinating and accessible book At the beginning of this century these relationships were dominated by human needs and interests modernization was a project which was attached to the goal of progress and animals were merely resources to be used on the path towards human fulfilment These relationships are increasingly being subjected to criticism and a new field of interest in human animal relationships has opened up We are now urged to be more sensitive and compassionate to animal needs and interests to understand their mindedness and how their lives and ours are entangled This book focuses on social change and animals it is concerned with how humans relate to animals and how this has changed and why Moreover it highlights through chapters on companion animals hunting and fishing animal leisures such as birdwatching and wildlife parks and the meat and livestock industries how attitudes and practices towards animals vary widely according to social class ethnicity gender region and nation Guano and the Opening of the Pacific World Gregory T.
