Ciriacy-Wantrup, 2019-04-09 This volume was assembled by two of Dr Wantrup's students as a complement to his textbook Resource Conservation Economics and Policies. Wantrup's ideas on conservation economics continued to evolve in ways that were never fully reflected in that text and although for the student of natural resource economics it is still essential reading to stop there is to have missed some of his most valuable insights Environmental and Natural Resource Economics Timothy C. Additionally the book includes entries on key concepts of economics movements events organizations important individuals and research areas relevant to the study of environmental and natural resource economics. This work stands alone as the only title currently offering such a breadth of coverage and level of detail written specifically for readers without specialized knowledge of environmental economics.

Development of the Dynamic Agro-Economic Soil Salinity (DASS) Model, 1990 Rethinking Sustainability

Jonathan Mark Harris, 2009-11-12 Bringing together the thoughts of economists political scientists anthropologists philosophers and agricultural policy professionals this volume focuses on the issues of sustainability in development. Examining such topics as international trade political power gender roles legal institutions and agricultural research the contributors focus on the missing links in theory and practice that have been barriers to the achievement of truly sustainable development. Any theory of sustainable development must take into account economic social and environmental dimensions. Until recently the question What is development was often answered predominantly from the economist's perspective with high priority being assigned to expansion of economic output. Social political institutional and ethical aspects have often been neglected. But now that sustainable development has become a broadly accepted concept it is impossible to maintain a narrowly economistic view of development For this reason the varied perspectives offered by the contributors to this volume are crucial to understanding the process of development as it relates to environmental sustainability and human well being The selection of articles is meant to be stimulating and provocative rather than comprehensive They are roughly divided between those dealing with broad theoretical issues concerning the economic political and social aspects of development Part I and those presenting more applied analysis Part II The common thread is a concern for examining which factors contribute to making development socially just and environmentally sound Rethinking Sustainability will be of interest to economists and social scientists development professionals and instructors seeking to offer their students a broad perspective on development issues Jonathan Harris is Senior Research Associate Global Development and Environment Institute at Tufts University as well as Adjunct Associate Professor of International Economics at Tufts University Fletcher School of Law

Biodiversity Conservation C. A. Perrings, 2012-12-06 This volume is one of a number of publications to carry the results of the first research programme of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences Beijer Institute. The Institute was formed in 1991 in order to promote interdisciplinary research between natural and social scientists on the interdependency between economic and ecological systems. In its first research programme, the Biodiversity Programme, the Institute brought together a number of leading economists and ecologists to address the theoretical and policy issues associated with the current high rates of biodiversity loss in such systems, whether the result of direct depletion, the destruction of habitat, or specialisation in agriculture, forestry, and fisheries. This volume reports some of the more policy-oriented work carried out under the programme. The broad aim of the programme is to further our understanding of the causes and consequences of biodiversity loss and to identify the options for addressing the problem. The results have turned out to be surprising to those who see biodiversity loss primarily in terms of the erosion of the genetic library. In various ways, the work carried out under the programme has already begun to alter our perception of where the problem in biodiversity loss lies and what policy options are available to deal with it. Indeed, the programme has provided a powerful set of arguments for reappraising not just the economic and ecological implications of biodiversity loss but the whole case for development based on specialisation of resource use.
