Physician Payment Review Commission,1995 US Health: A Failed System: Liaropoulos, Lykourgos,2016-10-29 Health has been one of the most frequent issues arising in the Social Policy debate for the last 60 or more years The answers given vary according to political ideology economic expediency and the moral standing of individuals and society The sources of funding are essentially two either the individual directly or a larger group acting on his behalf In the second case we have two main categories The individual is either covered by private for profit insurance or by a public insurance scheme financed by mandatory employment contributions and or by taxes on income and or wealth The economic implications of each form of health insurance are immense for individuals employers the government and for the economy as a whole The main differentiation is the position of health care in the value system of society If health care is considered a right its financing must be similar to that of other public goods or rights such as justice national security personal safety basic education etc At the same time the provision of all public goods is a public responsibility and government is judged by how well it measures up to this responsibility If on the other hand health care is considered a good bought and sold on the market then it is up to individuals to provide for themselves Obviously this fundamental issue belongs to the sphere of politics and is up to society to judge according to its code of ethics The time to decide has come in America somewhat belatedly but in a way more acute than ever The health of individuals but also and mainly the economic health of the nation depends on the decision Policy Tools for Allocative Efficiency of Health Services Xingzhu Liu,2003 This study is a result of trying to answer for the WHO the question Are there any policy tools that have been shown to improve the allocative efficiency of health care provision It does not simply tell policy makers which tools to take up but rather how to determine which ones are more likely to be feasible and effective given particular circumstances of political and administrative capacity knowledge on the part of both providers and consumers and other factors which affect whether a policy tool can be used and with what outcome Essentials of Health Care Finance William O.
