

The background of the book cover is a detailed medieval illustration. It depicts a harbor scene with several large wooden sailing ships (cogs) in the water. In the foreground, two men are shown handling grain. One man, wearing a bright yellow tunic and a black cap, is pouring grain from a large wooden bowl into a sack. Another man, wearing a red tunic and a green cap, is also handling the grain. There are several large sacks filled with grain on the ground. In the background, a city with a prominent church spire is visible on a hill. The overall style is that of a medieval manuscript illumination.

Power And Profit The Merchant In Medieval Europe:

Power and Profit Peter Spufford, 2006 Newly available in paperback this is a wonderfully readable account of the role of merchants and money in the medieval world Professor Spufford who has made a lifelong study of the subject brings together a vast amount of material from archives all over the world to build up this important economic history of the origins of capitalism essential reading for the scholar but also engaging and entertaining to the layman The Culture of Food in England, 1200-1500 C. M. Woolgar, 2016-04-26 In this revelatory work of social history C M Woolgar shows that food in late medieval England was far more complex varied and more culturally significant than we imagine today Drawing on a vast range of sources he charts how emerging technologies as well as an influx of new flavors and trends from abroad had an impact on eating habits across the social spectrum From the pauper s bowl to elite tables from early fad diets to the perceived moral superiority of certain foods and from regional folk remedies to luxuries such as lampreys Woolgar illuminates desire necessity daily rituals and pleasure across four centuries A Companion to the Hanseatic League, 2015-01-27 The Companion to the Hanseatic League discusses the importance of the Hanseatic League for the social and economic history of pre modern northern Europe Established already as early as the twelfth century the towns that formed the Hanseatic League created an important network of commerce throughout the Baltic and North Sea area From Russia in the east to England and France in the west the cities of the Hanseatic League created a vast northern maritime trade network The aim of this volume is to present a state of the field English language volume by some of the most respected Hanse scholars Contributors are Mike Burkhardt Ulf Christian Ewert Rolf Hammel Kiesow Donald J Harreld Carsten Jahnke Michael North J rgen Sarnowsky and Stephan Selzer A Day in a Working Life Gary Westfahl, 2015-04-21 Ideal for high school and college students studying history through the everyday lives of men and women this book offers intriguing information about the jobs that people have held from ancient times to the 21st century This unique book provides detailed studies of more than 300 occupations as they were practiced in 21 historical time periods ranging from prehistory to the present day Each profession is examined in a compelling essay that is specifically written to inform readers about career choices in different times and cultures and is accompanied by a bibliography of additional sources of information sidebars that relate historical issues to present day concerns as well as related historical documents Readers of this work will learn what each profession entailed or entails on a daily basis how one gained entry to the vocation training methods and typical compensation levels for the job The book provides sufficient specific detail to convey a comprehensive understanding of the experiences benefits and downsides of a given profession Selected accompanying documents further bring history to life by offering honest testimonies from people who actually worked in these occupations or interacted with those in that field

Rich Apparel Maria Hayward, 2017-03-02 English dress in the second half of the sixteenth century has been studied in depth yet remarkably little has been written on the earlier years or indeed on male clothing for the whole century The few studies that do cover these neglected areas have tended to be quite general focusing upon garments rather than the wearers. As such this present volume fills an important gap by providing a detailed analysis of not only what people wore in Henry's reign but why. The book describes and analyses dress in England through a variety of documents including warrants and accounts from Henry's Great Wardrobe and the royal household, contemporary narrative sources, legislation enacted by Parliament, guild regulations, inventories and wills supported with evidence and observations derived from visual sources and surviving garments. Whilst all these sources are utilised, the main focus of the study is built around the sumptuary legislation or the four Acts of Apparel passed by Henry between 1509 and 1547. English sumptuary legislation was concerned primarily with male dress and starting at the top of society with the king and his immediate family, it worked its way down through the social hierarchy but stopped short of the poor who did not have sufficient disposable income to afford the items under consideration. Certain groups such as women and the clergy who were specifically excluded from the legislation are examined in the second half of the book. Combining the consideration of such primary sources with modern scholarly analysis, this book is invaluable for anyone with an interest in the history of fashion, clothing and consumption in Tudor society.

The Waning of the Mediterranean, 1550-1870 Faruk Tabak, 2008-02-11 2008 Outstanding Academic Title Choice Magazine. Conventional scholarship on the Mediterranean portrays the Inner Sea as a timeless entity with unchanging ecological and agrarian features. But Faruk Tabak argues some of the traditional and olden characteristics that we attribute to it today are actually products of relatively recent developments. Locating the shifting fortunes of Mediterranean city states and empires in patterns of long term economic and ecological change, this study shows how the quintessential properties of the basin, the trinity of cereals, tree crops and small livestock, were reestablished as the Mediterranean's importance in global commerce, agriculture and politics waned. Tabak narrates this history not from the vantage point of colossal empires but from that of the mercantile republics that played a pivotal role as empire building city states. His unique juxtaposition of analyses of world economic developments that flowed from the decline of these city states and the ecological change associated with the Little Ice Age depicts large scale long term social change. Integrating the story of the western and eastern Mediterranean from Genoa and the Habsburg empire to Venice and the Ottoman and Byzantine empires, Tabak unveils the complex process of devolution and regeneration that brought about the eclipse of the Mediterranean.

The Wealth of England Susan Rose, 2017-11-30. The wool trade was undoubtedly one of the most important elements of the British economy throughout the medieval period, even the seat occupied by the speaker of the House of Lords rests on a woollen sack. In The Wealth of England Susan Rose brings together the social, economic and political strands in the development of the wool trade and shows how and why it became so important. The author looks at the lives of prominent wool men, gentry who based their wealth on producing this commodity like the Stonors in the Chilterns, canny middlemen who rose to prominence in the City of London like Nicholas Brembre and Richard Dick Whittington, and men who acquired wealth and influence like William de la Pole of Hull.

She examines how the wealth made by these and other wool men transformed the appearance of the leading centres of the trade with magnificent churches and other buildings The export of wool also gave England links with Italian trading cities at the very time that the Renaissance was transforming cultural life The complex operation of the trade is also explained with the role of the Staple at Calais to the fore leading to a discussion on the way the policy of English kings especially in the fourteenth century was heavily influenced by trade in this one commodity No other book has treated this subject holistically with its influence on the course of English history made plain Susan Rose presents a fascinating new exposition on the role of the wool trade in the economy and political history of medieval England She shows how this simple product created wealth and status among men of hugely varying backgrounds transformed market towns both economically and in architectural terms and contributed to fundamental social and cultural changes through trading links with Italy and other European countries at the height of the Renaissance Chaucer, Gower, Hoccleve and the Commercial Practices of Late Fourteenth-Century London Craig E. Bertolet, 2016-04-15 As residents of fourteenth century London Geoffrey Chaucer John Gower and Thomas Hoccleve each day encountered aspects of commerce such as buying selling and worrying about being cheated Many of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales address how pervasive the market had become in personal relationships Gower's writings include praises of the concept of trade and worries that widespread fraud has harmed it Hoccleve's poetry examines the difficulty of living in London on a slender salary while at the same time being subject to all the temptations a rich market can provide Each writer finds that principal tensions in London focused on commerce how it worked who controlled it how it was organized and who was excluded from it Reading literary texts through the lens of archival documents and the sociological theories of Pierre Bourdieu this book demonstrates how the practices of buying and selling in medieval London shaped the writings of Chaucer Gower and Hoccleve Craig Bertolet constructs a framework that reads specific Canterbury tales and pilgrims associated with trade alongside Gower's Mirour de L'Omme and Confessio Amantis and Hoccleve's Male Regle and Regiment of Princes Together these texts demonstrate how the inherent instability commerce produces also produces narratives about that commerce Women and Wealth in Late Medieval Europe T.

Earenfight, 2010-03-15 The twelve essays in Women and Wealth in Late Medieval Europe re-examine the vexing issue of women money wealth and power from distinctive perspectives literature history architectural history using new archival sources The contributors examine how money and changing attitudes toward wealth affected power relations between women and men of all ranks especially the patriarchal social forces that constrained the range of women's economic choices Employing theories on gender culture and power this volume reveals wealth as both the motive force in gender relations and a precise indicator of other more subtle forms of power and influence mediated by gender The Deep Roots of Modern Democracy John Gerring, Brendan Apfeld, Tore Wig, Andreas Forø Tollefsen, 2022-08-25 This book explores the deep roots of modern democracy focusing on geography and long term patterns of global diffusion Its geographic argument centers on access to the sea afforded by natural harbors which enhance the mobility of people goods capital and ideas The extraordinary connectivity of harbor regions thereby affected economic development the structure of the military statebuilding and openness to the world and through these pathways the development of representative democracy The authors second argument focuses on the global diffusion of representative democracy Beginning around 1500 Europeans started to populate distant places abroad Where Europeans were numerous they established some form of representative democracy often with restrictions limiting suffrage to those of European heritage Where they were in the minority Europeans were more reticent about popular rule and often actively resisted democratization Where Europeans were entirely absent the concept of representative democracy was unfamiliar and its practice undeveloped English Inland Trade Michael Hicks,2015-07-31
