Models And Myths In Canadian Sociology:

Models & Myths in Canadian Sociology Stephen D. Berkowitz, 1984-01-01 Star Wars in Canadian Sociology

David A. Nock, Ursula Anne Margaret Kelly, 1993 David Nock looks at the theories of prominent sociologists and presents a thoroughly grounded discussion of how this unique brand of sociology has been socially constructed. It is a pleasant, interesting, and informative reader which makes all these topics look just a little bit different than they did before. Rich

Ogmundson University of Victoria Law, Rhetoric and Irony in the Formation of Canadian Civil Culture Michael

Dorland, Maurice René Charland, 2002-01-01 In Rhetoric, Irony and Law in the Formation of Canadian Civil Culture Michael

Dorland and Maurice Charland examine how over the roughly 400-year period since the encounter of First Peoples with Europeans in North America, rhetorical or discursive fields took form in politics and constitution making in the formation of a public sphere and in education and language. The study looks at how these fields changed over time within the French regime, the British regime, and in Canada since 1867, and how they converged through trial and error into a Canadian civil culture.

The authors establish a triangulation of fields of discourse formed by law as a technical discourse system, rhetoric as a public discourse system, and irony as a means of accessing the public realm as the key pillars upon which a civil culture in Canada took form in order to scrutinize the process of creating a civil culture. By presenting case studies ranging from the legal implications of the transition from French to English law to the continued importance of the Louis Riel case and trial, the authors provide detailed analyses of how communication practices form a common institutional culture. As scholars of communication and rhetoric, Dorland and Charland have written a challenging examination of the history of Canadian governance and the central role played by legal and other discourses in the formation of civil culture. Continentalizing

Canada Gregory J. Inwood, 2005-01-01 Free trade has been a highly contentious issue since the Conservative government of Brian Mulroney negotiated the first deal with the United States in the 1980s. Tracing the roots of Canada's contemporary involvement in North American free trade back to the Royal Commission on the Economic Union and Development Prospects for Canada in 1985, also known as the Macdonald Commission, Gregory J. Inwood offers a critical examination of the commission and how its findings affected Canada's political and economic landscape, including its present-day reverberations. Using original research, including content analysis, interviews, archival information, and surveys of relevant literature, Inwood argues that the Macdonald Commission created an atmosphere and political discourse that made the continentalization of Canada possible by way of free trade agreements with the U.S. and Mexico. Through the use of a suspect research program and with the aid of a select oligarchy within the Commission and the government bureaucracy, opposition to continentalism from both the majority of the Canadian population and even several commissioners was ignored. Accessible to readers interested in Canadian politics, policy, or economy, Continentalizing Canada offers a thorough examination into the Macdonald

Commission and the resulting discourse in the Canadian political economy. American Sociological Hegemony Danesh

A. Chekki,1987 Provides a synthetic comparative analysis of the dominant influence of American Sociology on the sociologies of India and Canada It examines the positivism humanism controversy and the roles of sociologists and argues for the development of a global sociology Selected by Choice as an Outstanding Academic Book of 1988 1989 Social Structures

Barry Wellman,S. D. Berkowitz,1988-01-29 This study of social structures looks at the network approach It contains non technical articles that contrast structural analysis with other social scientific approaches It deals with individual behaviour and identity and with neighbourhood and community ties It examines the relationships within and between organizations discussing how firms occupy strategically appropriate niches It also explores the impact of the growth of the Internet equating computer networks as social networks connecting people in virtual communities and collaborative work Canada 2013
