Care of the Dying Patient David A. Fleming, John C. Hagan, 2010-04-15 Although the need for improved care for dying patients is widely recognized and frequently discussed few books address the needs of the physicians nurses social workers therapists hospice team members and pastoral counselors involved in care Care of the Dying Patient contains material not found in other sources offering advice and solutions to anyone professional caregiver or family member confronted with incurable illness and death Its authors have lectured and published extensively on care of the dying patient and here review a wide range of topics to show that relief of physical suffering is not the only concern in providing care This collection encompasses diverse aspects of end of life care across multiple disciplines offering a broad perspective on such central issues as control of pain and other symptoms spirituality the needs of caregivers and special concerns regarding the elderly In its pages readers will find out how to effectively utilize palliative care services and activate timely referral to hospice arrange for care that takes into account patients cultural beliefs and respond to spiritual and psychological distress including the loss of hope that often overshadows physical suffering The authors especially emphasize palliative care and hospice since some physicians fear that such referrals may be viewed by patients and families as abandonment They also address ethical and legal risks in pain management and warn that fear of overprescribing pain medication may inadvertently lead to ineffective pain relief and even place the treating team at risk of liability for undertreatment of pain While physicians have the ability to treat disease they also help to determine the time and place of death and they must recognize that end of life choices are made more complex than ever before by advances in medicine and at the same time increasingly important Care of the Dying Patient addresses some of the challenges frequently confronted in terminal care and points the way toward a more compassionate way of death

Nursing Care at the End of Life Ginny Wacker Guido,2010 Nursing Care at the End of Life by Ginny Wacker Guido incorporates many of the chapter features in High Acuity Nursing 5th ed by Kathleen Dorman Wagner Using this format the author presents material ranging from the legal and ethical aspects that affect care to the clinical issues nurses face when dealing with acute illness pain and dying to communication and family dynamics Case studies give readers an opportunity to process and apply the chapter material The role of the nurse is highlighted throughout the book and each chapter is followed by NCLEX style review questions This is a perfect reference for anyone studying to become a nurse or a nurse needed a professional resource for career success

Nursing Support for Families of Dying Patients Rosemary McIntyre,2001-11-28 When a patient has an advanced disease considerable demands are placed on the whole family Whilst coping with their own profound emotions close relatives commonly have to support their loved ones through a range of treatments as the disease progresses through stages of remission and recurrence until finally a shift to a palliative mode of treatment must be faced In such situations family roles and relationships are likely to be disrupted and family members coping resources can be stretched to the limit It is clear from this that by the time the terminal stage of the patient s illness is reached the family may have travelled a long and difficult road and close relatives are likely to be emotionally vulnerable and in need of support This study explores the needs of relatives of terminally ill patients and the concerns of nurses who provide care in the hospital The research data is used to design implement and evaluate clinical standards for improved family support

The Dying Patient E. Wilkes,2012-12-06 The main purpose of this book is to bring together some description of the skills and attitudes of those working in the hospice units specializing in terminal care with those rather different but overlapping skills used daily in the palliation of chronic or incurable disease This varied collection of papers does not pretend to be exhaustive Among the omissions for example are two major causes of death chronic respiratory disease and stroke This is because the treatment of the end state of these conditions and they are not alone in this lies more in the gentle withdrawal of measures no longer appropriate rather than in any positive regime within the gift of the physician This may lead on occasion to an unjustifiable diminution of interest but this is less likely in cases of cardiac or malignant disease Ischaemic heart disease remains the main killer of the western world We may see important changes in our approach over the next decade as we document slowly and painstakingly the comparative ineffectiveness of our therapy but in cases of progressive cardiac disease no matter how we may argue as to management or prevention we are agreed that we must lighten the dreary burden of illness as effectively as possible

Care of the Difficult Patient Peter Manos, Joan Braun, 2007-04-11 Developed collaboratively by a doctor and nurse team this is the first text to deal specifically with nursing difficult patients Whether patient problems stem from mental distress and ill health historic substance abuse demanding family members or abusive behaviour difficult patients place extra demands on nurses both professionally and personally Caring for difficult patients requires both technical and interpersonal skills along with an ability to exercise power and set limits This text presents invaluable practical recommendations and advice well founded in experience and supported by relevant literature for nurses coping with challenging real world situations Including learning points further reading case studies and dialogue examples to highlight good and bad practice the book covers pertinent issues such as psychiatric diagnoses setting limits and establishing authority death and dying stress and work It is ideal for pre and post registration nurses providing concrete direction on the management of difficult patients
