Abstract The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and metabolic profile of obese women. The study was conducted in a clinical setting and involved 15 obese women (mean age 45.8 ± 1.2 years, mean BMI 38.5 ± 1.5 kg/m²). The women were randomized to either a control group (n = 7) or an intervention group (n = 8). The control group maintained their current diet and lifestyle, while the intervention group followed a 1000 kcal energy deficit diet. Body composition was measured using dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry (DXA) at baseline and 12 weeks. Metabolic profile was assessed using a 2-hour oral glucose tolerance test (OGTT) at baseline and 12 weeks. The results showed that the intervention group had a significant decrease in body weight, fat mass, and waist circumference compared to the control group. There was also a significant improvement in insulin sensitivity and glucose tolerance in the intervention group. The findings suggest that a 1000 kcal energy deficit diet for 12 weeks can lead to significant improvements in body composition and metabolic profile in obese women.
