Americans from across the United States to attend the Western Forest and Conservation Nursery Association annual meeting. About 25 tribal members representing 20 tribes attended the meeting at Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado. The following year a similar meeting was held in Olympia, Washington, and tribal members initiated a Tribal Nursery Council and requested that RNGR facilitate the organization. During 2003 RNGR requested information from 560 tribes across the United States seeking specific information on tribes' needs for native plants, facilities, training, and so on. Results from the responding 77 tribes were incorporated into the Tribal Nursery Needs Assessment. Based on the results of that questionnaire and input from tribal members attending the 2003 Intertribal Nursery Council meeting in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, it was agreed that a nursery handbook was needed. That fall planning began for writing the manual, loosely based on Agriculture Handbook 674, The Container Tree Nursery Manual, but with special attention to the uniqueness of Native American cultures.

Forest Nursery Manual: Production of Bareroot Seedlings Mary L. Duryea, Thomas D. Landis, 2012-12-06. Injurious damage ranged from odor to general visual appearance. Attributes of seedling quality are categorized as either to cutting buds to scraping bark to detect dead cambium. Performance attributes: RGP, frost hardiness, stress resistance. One nursery reported using frost hardiness as an indicator of material attributes: bud dormancy, water relations, nutrition, when to begin fall lifting, but none reported using it as a morphology. Performance attributes are assessed by placing indicator of seedling quality before shipping stock to customers, samples of seedlings into specified controlled environments, and evaluating their responses. Although some effective short-term stress resistance cut procedures are being developed, performance tests tend to be time consuming. Only three nurseries measure stress resistance. They use to be time consuming, however, they produce results on whole the services of Oregon State University and the test methods, plant responses which are often closely correlated with field described in 23.2.3. One nursery reported that results of stress performance material attributes on the other hand reflect tests did not agree well with results of RGP tests and that RGP only individual aspects of seedling makeup and are often correlated better with seedling survival in the field. Most stress poorly correlated with performance tests are conducted for reforestation personnel rather than for bud dormancy status, seems to be correlated at least nurseries.
