

The image features a variety of fly fishing nymphs, which are artificial flies designed to imitate aquatic insects in their larval or nymphal stages. These nymphs are arranged in a circular pattern around the central text. They come in various colors including green, brown, black, red, and yellow, and have different body shapes and wing structures. Some have long, feathery wings, while others are more compact and insect-like. The central text is in a bold, red, serif font with a black outline, making it stand out against the white background.
