Sōtērakopoulou,Peggy Sotirakopoulou,2005 Keros is a small mountainous and now deserted island situated between Naxos Amorgos and Ios in the southeast Cyclades Keros became widely known after a series of extensive and clandestine excavations in the 1950s and early 1960s which concentrated on a particularly rich deposit of material at the site of Kavos situated at its barren western extremity These major lootings resulted in the illegal export from Greece of a large number of Early Cycladic objects mostly fragmentary marble figurines that flooded the international antiquities market under the general name the Keros Hoard. The cache was said to have included at least 350 Cycladic objects and is now widely dispersed. This study features a review of the archaeological investigations on Keros, a discussion of the so-called Keros Hoard, an extensive account of the various aspects of Cycladic figurines and a catalogue of the objects identified as coming from the Hoard. Also included are an analysis of the data derived from the Hoard, the results of the study comparing the fragments in the Museum of Cycladic Art with those discovered at Kavos during official archaeological investigations, an interpretation of the Hoard.

The Eye and the Beholder
Hannelore Hägele, 2014-06-02

In The Eye and the Beholder, the author singles out a topic already touched upon in her previous book Colour in Sculpture. By raising the question of how significant the colouring of the eye is to figurative representations of the late medieval and early modern period, Hannelore Hägele examines the different solutions open to the sculptor which vary depending on historical and cultural parameters. The created eye must suit purpose and style. She discusses a number of unusual aspects of this sculpted eye: in antiquity, the art and craft of polychromy, partial polychromy, emotions and expressions, the gaze and the glance from the sculpted eye to colour and the glass eye, and what the eye cannot see. Dr Hägele asks whether advances in optics and other sciences or theological concepts such as the eye of God and the inner eye determined the way in which eyes were perceived and represented. It is the beholder, whether as maker or viewer, who engages with and judges the worth of any creative effort and what it contributes to an understanding of the seen and the unseen. The illustrations and the many coloured plates accompanying the text offer an overview of the subject.
