Aviation Psychology and Human Factors Monica Martinussen, David R. Hunter, 2009-09-28 While it is true that fortune favors the prepared mind in the field of aviation it may be equally true that misfortune often punishes an unprepared mind To be fully prepared pilots must have comprehensive knowledge of weather aerodynamics propulsion navigation and all the other technical disciplines However they must also have a comprehensive understanding of the component that is simultaneously the most fragile and most resilient the most unreliable and the most adaptable the human being Aviation Psychology and Human Factors explores the application of psychological principles and techniques to the specific situations and problems of aviation It provides a complete overview of the role of psychology in the field of aviation The authors address the contribution of psychology in the design of aviation systems the selection and training of pilots the psychological characteristics of pilots that may relate to aviation safety and to the behavior of passengers They cover key concepts of psychological research and data analysis at a depth that fosters a greater appreciation of how these tools are used in the development of new psychological knowledge A keener understanding of aviation psychology will better prepare pilots for the demands that aviation will make While many books cover this subject for psychologists very few if any present the material to pilots With balanced coverage that makes the material accessible to both this book makes pilots aware of the positive impact psychology and its application can have on improving aviation operations providing specific information that pilots can use in their daily operations It gives psychologists a better understanding of how their discipline is applied to aviation while giving pilots the tools to better evaluate and implement future products in the field of aviation psychology

Decision Making in Aviation Don Harris, Wen-Chin Li, 2017-07-05 Decision making pervades every aspect of life people make hundreds of decisions every day The vast majority of these are trivial and without a right or wrong answer In some respects there is also nothing extraordinary about pilot decision making It is only the setting that is different the underlying cognitive processes are just the same However it is the context and the consequences of a poor decision which serve to differentiate aeronautical decision making Decisions on the flight deck are often made with incomplete information and while under time pressure The implications for inadequate performance is much more serious than in many other professions Poor decisions are implicated in over half of all aviation accidents This volume contains key papers published over the last 25 years providing an overview of the major paradigms by which aeronautical decision making has been investigated Furthermore decision making does not occur in isolation It is a joint function of the flight tasks knowledge equipment on the flight deck and other stressors In this volume of collected papers works from leading authors in the field consider all these aspects of aeronautical decision making

Remotely Piloted Aircraft Systems Nancy J. Cooke, Leah J. Rowe, Winston Bennett, Jr., DeForest Q. Joralmon, 2016-08-12 Highlights the human components of Remotely Piloted Aircraft Systems their interactions with the technology and each other and the implications of human capabilities and limitations for the larger system Considers human factors issues associated with RPAS but within the context of a very large system of people other vehicles policy safety concerns and varying applications Chapters have been contributed by world class experts in HSI and those with operational RPAS experience Considers unintended consequences associated with taking a more myopic view of this system Examines implications for practice policy and research Considers both civil and military aspects of RPAS The Oxford Handbook of Expertise Paul Ward, Jan Maarten Schraagen, Julie Gore, Emilie M. Roth, 2020 The Oxford Handbook of Expertise provides a comprehensive picture of the field of Expertise Studies It offers both traditional and contemporary perspectives and importantly a multidiscipline multimethod view of the science and engineering research on expertise Pilot Mental Health Assessment and Support Robert Bor, Carina Eriksen, Margaret Oakes, Peter Scragg, 2016-12-08 The presentation of mental illness at work has different implications and consequences depending on the specific nature of the job work context regulatory framework and risks for the employee organisation and society Naturally there are certain occupational groups where human factors and or mental illness could impair safety and mental acuity and with potentially devastating consequences For pilots the medical criteria for crew licensing are stipulated by regulatory aviation authorities worldwide and these include specific mental illness exclusions The challenge of assessment for mental health problems is however complex and the responsibility for psychological screening and testing falls to a range of different specialists and groups including AMEs authorised aviation medical examiners GPs and physicians airline human resources departments psychologists human factor specialists and pilots themselves Extending and developing the ideas of Aviation Mental Health 2006 which described a range of psychological issues and problems that may affect pilots and the consequences of these this book presents an authoritative comprehensive and practical guide to modern evidence based practice in the field of mental health assessment treatment and care It features contributions from experts in the field drawn from several countries professions and representing a range of aviation related organisations displaying a range of different skills and methods that can be used for the clinical assessment of pilots and in relation to specific mental health problems and syndromes
