Television in Black-and-white America Alan Nadel, 2005 La couverture indigne Alan Nadel s new book reminds us that most of the images on early TV were decidedly Caucasian and directed at predominantly white audiences Television did not invent whiteness for America but it did reinforce it as the norm particularly during the Cold War years Nadel now shows just how instrumental it was in constructing a narrow conservative and very white vision of America During this era prime time TV was dominated by adult Westerns with heroes like The Rebel s Johnny Yuma reincarnating Southern values and Bonanza s Cartwright family reinforcing the notion of white patriarchy programs that Nadel shows bristled with Cold War messages even as they spoke to the nation s mythology America had become visually reconfigured as a vast Ponderosa crisscrossed by concrete highways designed to carry suburban white drivers beyond the moral challenge of racism racial poverty and increasingly vocal civil rights demands

Magic Lands John M. Findlay, 1993-09-22 The American West conjures up images of pastoral tranquility and wide open spaces but by 1970 the Far West was the most urbanized section of the country Exploring four intriguing cityscapes Disneyland Stanford Industrial Park Sun City and the 1962 Seattle World's Fair John Findlay shows how each created a sense of cohesion and sustained people's belief in their superior urban environment This first book length study of the urban West after 1940 argues that Westerners deliberately tried to build cities that differed radically from their eastern counterparts In 1954 Walt Disney began building the world's first theme park using Hollywood's movie making techniques The creators of Stanford Industrial Park were more hesitant in their approach to a conceptually organized environment but by the mid 1960s the Park was the nation's prototypical research park and the intellectual downtown for the high technology region that became Silicon Valley In 1960 on the outskirts of Phoenix Del E Webb built Sun City the largest most influential retirement community in the United States Another innovative cityscape arose from the 1962 Seattle World's Fair and provided a futuristic somewhat fanciful vision of modern life These four became magic lands that provided an antidote to the apparent chaos of their respective urban milieus Exemplars of a new lifestyle they are landmarks on the changing cultural landscape of postwar America
