market themselves in some way Richard Wagner may just have done it better than anyone else In a self promotional effort that began around 1840 in Paris and lasted for the remainder of his career Wagner claimed convincingly that he was the most German composer ever and the true successor of Beethoven More significantly he was an opera composer who declared that he was not composing operas Instead during the 1850s he mapped out a new direction conceiving of works that would break with tradition and be literally brand new This is the first study to examine the innovative ways in which Wagner made himself a celebrity promoting himself using every means available autobiography journal articles short stories newspaper announcements letters even his operas themselves Vazsonyi reveals how Wagner created a niche for his works in the crowded opera market that continues to be unique

Redefining Hungarian Music from Liszt to Bartók Lynn M. Hooker, 2013-10-25 Some of the most popular works of nineteenth century music were labeled either Hungarian or Gypsy in style including many of the best known and least respected of Liszt's compositions In the early twentieth century Béla Bartók and his colleagues questioned not only the Hungarianness but also the good taste of that style Bartók argued that it should be discarded in favor of a national style based in the genuine folk music of the rural peasantry Between the heyday of the nineteenth century Hungarian Gypsy style and its replacement by a new paradigm of authentic national style was a vigorous decades long debate one little known inside or outside Hungary over what it meant to be Hungarian European and modern Redefining Hungarian Music from Liszt to Bartók traces the historical process that defined the conventions of Hungarian Gypsy style Author Lynn M Hooker frames her study around the 1911 celebration of Liszt's centennial In so doing she analyzes Liszt's problematic role as a Hungarian born composer and leader of Hungarian art music who spent most of his life outside of Hungary and questioned whether Hungary's national music was more the creation of Hungarians or Roma Gypsies The themes of race and nation that emerge in the discussion of Liszt are further developed in an analysis of discourse on Hungarian national music throughout the Hungarian press in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Showing how the discovery of genuine folk music by Bartók and Kodály often depicted as a purely scientific matter responds directly to concerns raised by earlier writers about the problem of Hungarian music Hooker argues that the innovations of Bartók and Kodály and their circle are not so much in correcting a flawed concept of the national as in using the idea of national authenticity to open up freedom for composers to explore more stylistic options including the exploration of modernist musical language Meticulously researched and elegantly written Redefining Hungarian Music from Liszt to Bartók is essential reading for musicologists musicians and concertgoers alike

Vital Performance Andrew Snedden, 2021-03-19 Historically Informed Performance or HIP has become an influential and exciting development for scholars musicians and audiences alike Yet it has not been unchallenged with debate over the desirability of its central goals and the accuracy of its results The author suggests ways out of this impasse in Romantic performance style In this wide ranging study pianist and scholar Andrew John Snedden takes a step back examining the strengths and limitations of HIP He proposes that many problems are avoided when performance styles are understood as expressions of their cultural era rather than as simply composer intention explaining not merely how we play but why we play the way we do and why the nineteenth century Romantics played very differently Snedden examines the principal evidence we have for Romantic performance style especially in translation of score indications and analysis of early recordings finally focusing on the performance styles of Liszt and Chopin He concludes with a call for the reanimation of culturally appropriate performance styles in Romantic repertoire This study will be of great interest to scholars performers and students to anyone wondering about how our performances reflect our culture and about how the Romantics played their own culturally embedded music
