Apocryphal and Literary Influences on Galway Diasporic History Gay Lynch, 2010-10-12

Apocryphal and Literary Influences on Galway Diasporic History establishes that apocryphal stories in all their transformations contribute to collective memory. Common characteristics frame their analysis: irreducible and enduring elements often embedded in archetypal drama; lack of historical verification; establishment in collective memory; revivals after periods of dormancy; subjection to political and economic manipulation; implicit speculation and literary transformations. This book contextualises Unsettled, an Australian novel about a convict play derived from the Irish apocryphal story of The Magistrate of Galway, and documents previously unpublished primary material including apocryphal stories passed through generations of descendants of settlers. Martin and Maria Lynch and The Hibernian Father, a play by Irish convict Edward Geoghegan. It puts forward new hypotheses that the Irish hero Cuchulain may have provided a template for the archetypal and apocryphal story of the Magistrate of Galway, that disgraced Trinity College medical student and aspiring writer Edward Geoghegan enacted and recounted the same father-son archetypal conflict when he was transported to Botany Bay in 1839 and wrote The Hibernian Father based on the Magistrate of Galway, that working-class Irish families were marginalised in South-east South Australian historical records, that oral apocryphal Lynch stories may be true, that Kate Grenville's The Secret River 2006 offers an alternative history of the Hawkesbury River settlement by some definitions, apocryphal. The mystery of Geoghegan's disappearance is solved and knowledge about his life increased. French theorist Gerard Genette's notion advanced in Palimpsests: Literature in the Second Degree 1997 of all novels being transtextual provides a model for the analysis of relationships between these key apocryphal texts.

Practical Soldiers: Israel's Military Thought and Its Formative Factors Avi Kober, 2015-11-16

This book suggests a general framework for the analysis of formative factors in military thought and offers an account of the Israel Defense Force's state of intellectualism and modernity. This account is followed by an attempt to trace the factors that have shaped Israeli military thought. The explanations are a mixture of realist and non-realist factors which can be found at both the systemic and the state level of analysis. At the systemic level, realist evaluations focus on factors such as the dominance of the technological dimension and the pervasiveness of asymmetrical, low-intensity conflict, whereas at the state level, one can find realist explanations, cultural factors and societal influences. Moral and legal constraints also factor into both the systemic and state levels.

Child Soldier Victims of Genocidal

Forcible Transfer Sonja C. Grover, 2012-01-05 This book provides an original legal analysis of child soldiers recruited into armed groups or forces committing mass atrocities and or genocide as the victims of the genocidal forcible transfer of children. Legal argument is made regarding the lack of criminal culpability of such child soldier recruits for conflict related international crimes and the inapplicability of currently recommended judicial and non judicial accountability mechanisms in such cases. The book challenges various anthropological accounts of child soldiers alleged tactical agency to resist committing atrocity as members of armed groups or forces committing mass atrocity and or genocide. Also provided are original interpretations of relevant international law including an interpretation of the Rome Statute age based exclusion from prosecution of persons who were under 18 at the time of perpetrating the crime as substantive law setting an international standard for the humane treatment of child soldiers.
