Morocco's independence in 1956 and the death of King Hassan II in 1999 to examine the transformative roles memory and trauma play in reconstructing stories of three historically marginalized groups in Moroccan history: Berbers, Imazighen, Jews, and political prisoners. The book shows how Moroccan cultural production has become an other archive, a set of textual, sonic, embodied, and visual sites that recover real or reimagined voices of these formerly suppressed and silenced constituencies of Moroccan society. Combining theoretical discussions with close reading of literary works, the book reenvisioning both archives and the nation in postcolonial Morocco. By producing other archives, Moroccan cultural creators transform the losses, state violence inflicted on society during the years of lead into a source of civic engagement and historiographical agency enabling the writing of histories about those Moroccans who have been excluded from official documentation and state sanctioned histories. The book is multilingual and interdisciplinary, examining primary sources in Amazigh, Berber, Arabic, Darija, and French, and drawing on memory studies, literary theory, archival studies, anthropology, and historiography. In addition to showing how other archives are created and operate, El Guabli elaborates how language, gender, class, race, and geographical distribution are co-constitutive of a historical and archival unsilencing that is foundational to citizenship in Morocco today.

In 1898 St Philip's Normal and Industrial School opened its doors in San Antonio, offering sewing classes for black girls. It was the inaugural effort in a program founded by the West Texas diocese of the Episcopal Church to educate and train former slaves and other African Americans in that city. Originally tied to St Philip's Church, about three miles east of the downtown center, the school grew to offer high school and then junior college courses and eventually affiliated with the San Antonio Independent School District and San Antonio College. One of the few remaining historically black junior colleges in the country, St Philip's, whose student body is no longer predominantly black, has also been designated a Hispanic-serving institution, one of few schools to bear both designations. Known by many as the school that love built, St Philip's College claimed in its 1932 catalog: "There is perhaps as much romance surrounding the development of St Philip's Junior College as there is of the Alamo City in which it is located."

That love story also containing dominant strains of sacrifice scarcity creativity determination and pride finds its full expression in this history by Marie Pannell Thurston Based on archival research and extensive interviews with current and former alumni faculty and friends St Philip s College presents the heartwarming and inspiring record of a school the community that nurtures it and the collective pride in what the institution and its graduates have accomplished
