Other Creations Rediscovering The Spirituality Of Animals:

Other Creations Christopher Manes, 1997 A Saint Bernard despite its name is unwelcome in church Any dog cat sheep terrapin or bird clearly faces this same prohibition Do animals have any relevance to humanity's continuing search for a spiritually rich life Have they ever Modern religions have all but banished the animal kingdom from our places of worship and the non human world has become increasingly marginalized and left out of religious discourse And yet just beneath the surface lies a lush tradition of animal archetypes a spiritual bestiary in which Satan appears as a serpent Jesus as the Lamb of God and the Holy Spirit as a dove Jehovah tests the depths of Daniel's belief in a lion's den Our cathedrals teem with stone eagles stags and other symbolic fauna Our deepest moral ideas find expression through animal stories like Aesop's fables the Buddhist Jataka and Orwell's Animal Farm At the prehistoric heart of humanity's attempts to articulate spiritual sentiments we find the caves of Lascaux and images not of white robed deities but of the giant beasts of the Ice Age Christopher Manes's groundbreaking Other Creations uncovers this tradition as it flourished in the past and as it lives on today In this fascinating study unlike any yet published Manes shows how animals embodied our first attempts to express spirituality as seen in the cave paintings of Ice Age Europe and how they continue to do so today in subtle even unperceived ways such as through sports team mascots horror films and toys Drawing on both his literary scholarship and his personal search for a deeper experience of faith Manes demonstrates that animals do not simply decorate our religious lives they are part of the very texture of human spirituality The Living Church, 1997 Animals, Rights and Reason in Plutarch and Modern Ethics
