

move souls. He is among the founders of the great Academy of Bologna, whose main protagonist was Guido Reni during the first half of the 17th century.

Hall of Saint Petronilla: great paintings of the 17th century in Rome.

At the end of the 16th century Rome returns to be the capital of European painting and the principal place of artistic research. The greatest artists come to Rome in order to learn, work and find clients.

The long stay of Caravaggio from the second half of the nineties of the 16th century to 1606 marked an important revolution in the history of painting.

Hall of Pietro da Cortona: Baroque painting – Pietro da Cortona and the Cortonesc

Baroque started in the twenties of the 17th century in coincidence with the first years of pope Urban VIII Barberini's pontificate. Pietro da Cortona was the first representative of this new painting style, thanks to his capacity of painting grand scenographies he became an example for an entire generation of painters.

The Cini Gallery: European and Oriental Porcelain

The Cini Gallery houses a precious collection of porcelains donated to the Capitoline Museums by Count Francesco Cini in 1881. Over time the collection was enriched by other donations of European and oriental porcelain collections. The walls are hung with European paintings from the XVI – XVIII centuries and the series of Antwerp tapestries representing the story of Semiramis.

Palazzo Clementino Caffarelli

Palazzo Caffarelli, including the oldest part called Palazzo Clementino, became part of the museum in 2000.

Restorations made it possible to restore most of the original dimensions of the rooms, especially in Palazzo Clementino, and to recover some of the decorative networks of its Piano Nobile. The original core of the palazzo was built during the second half of the 16th century on the Capitoline Hill, within the Caffarelli's possessions. The building, attached to Palazzo dei Conservatori appeared in city maps around 1593 and in modern times has erroneously been called Palazzo Clementino.

The ancient building comprises the Hall of the Frescoes and three adjacent rooms, as evidenced by the wooden small coffered ceilings and part of the wall decorations found during restoration and surviving elements of a decorative apparatus dating back to the same period of time.

Second floor

Capitoline Coin Cabinet One of the main collections is displayed in the four bigger glass cabinets. The exhibition follows the chronological order of the various stages of the creation of the Coin Cabinet collection. The documentation of the various phases of Roman coinage is particularly interesting with pieces coming from the urban area and important private collections. The glyptics and the jewellery displayed are ancient finds coming from digs or reused in modern jewellery and created by the Castiglioni's goldsmiths. Historical and yearly struck medals by the Municipality of Rome are displayed as well.

The Santarelli collection: one of the rooms houses the glyptic collection of the Dino and Ernesto Santarelli foundation. It is on loan for ten years at the Capitoline Museums and comprises items coming from ancient Egypt, the Near East, from the Greek-Roman world and modern Europe. The following room is equipped with a complete educational apparatus that consists of explanatory panels, multi-media tools and videos explaining the technical procedures of glyptic art.

Hall of Frescoes: this room, given its size and sumptuous decorations, is the most important one.
