David T Evans, 2018-11-09 First published in 1999 this original and entertaining sociological study takes a comprehensive and critical view of opera as unique cultural artefact as loss making industry as institution with a museum culture and as consumed commodity of rare distinction and elaborate ritual Specific chapters deal with opera within the contexts of musicological analysis auratic art and fetishized taste opera as business and as museum singers opera producers opera and audiences opera There is also a chapter on opera popular commercialised fragments of opera outside the opera house consumed by and through all manner of reproduced means CD video Three Tenors concerts film and TV soundtracks advertising jingles etc Despite the supposed popularisation and successful commercial exploitation of opera during the past decade or so this study concludes that opera remains an art form institution and ritual of relative inaccessibility and exclusiveness The commercial interest in and profitability of opera do not translate into new popular audiences in the opera house The increased dependency of opera companies on corporate funding in the face of retreating government subsidies may have brought a new elite audience into the expensive seats pandered to by the introduction of surtitles etc but the traditional elite has succeeded in closing down entry to opera in other select venues where opera continues to confirm and maintain their select identity and prestige of their life style
