Understanding Global News Jaap van Ginneken, 1998-01-23 Using the enormous number of available examples and a range of theoretical perspectives the author demonstrates the ways in which the news media are able to manipulate an individual's perception of the world

Media Imagery and Political Choice Laura Ann Granka, 2011 The research presented in this manuscript contrasts a text only and graphical display of news to assess the personal and environmental factors affecting news preferences This research was conducted in two stages First an online experiment and survey of 1 000 participants assessed the effects of political attitudes personal demographics and visual cues on news selection behaviors Second an eyetracking study evaluated the ocular and cognitive behaviors associated with the processing of each news display Analyses specifically examined which factors influence i an individual's preferences for hard and soft news ii an individual's preferences for specific news sources and iii how stable or susceptible to change these preferences are over time Results indicate that visual design political attitudes and personal demographics all affect the type of news and source selected Specifically a graphical news layout encourages the selection of soft news categories though this is moderated by education A graphical layout also enables more repeat selections to the same source Furthermore eyetracking shows that a graphical news format produces lower levels of attention and cognitive processing Broader implications for the future of news display and news acquisition are discussed
