Fingarette, 2015-12-14 No one who reads this book will ever again think of his or her own death in the same way The first part of the book consists of a thought provoking essay in which Fingarette examines the metaphors which mislead us death as parting death as sleep immortality as the denial of death and selflessness as a kind of consolation He also thinks through some of the more illuminating metaphors death as the end of the world for me death as the conclusion of a story life as ceremony and life as a tourist visit to earth The author offers no facile consolation but he identifies the true root of fear of death and explains how the meaning of death can be reconceived The second part comprises writings on death by other philosophers including classic selections from the Bhagavad Gita Arthur Schopenhauer Sigmund Freud Chuang Tzu David Hume Albert Camus Blaise Pascal Leo Tolstoy Eugene Ionesco Marcus Aurelius Michel de Montaigne and Bertrand Russell An excellent treatment that invites the reader in to share a warm meal of healthy contemplation Brian Bruya Philosophy Editor amazon.com This book's questions are at one and the same time philosophical and personal A diversity of philosophical insights are harvested during the reflective critical work which makes up Fingarette's extended essay the style is direct what it expresses is expressed clearly and with simplicity and what comes through it is the author's seriousness and humility Ilham Dilman University of Wales Swansea A Blessing and a Curse Matt Wilde, 2023-10-10 A Blessing and a

Curse examines the lived experience of political change moral uncertainty and economic crisis amid Venezuela's controversial Bolivarian Revolution Drawing on ethnographic research conducted in an urban barrio over the course of a decade Matt Wilde argues that everyday life in this period was intimately shaped by a critical contradiction that in their efforts to capture a larger portion of oil money and distribute it more widely among the population the governments of Hugo Chavez and Nicol's Maduro pursued policies that ultimately entrenched Venezuela in the very position of dependency they sought to overcome Offering a new synthesis between anthropological work on energy politics and morality the book explores how the use of oil money to fund the revolution's social programs and political reforms produced profound cultural anxieties about the contaminating effects of petroleum revenues in everyday settings Tracing how these anxieties rippled out into community life family networks and local politics Wilde shows how questions about how to live a good life came to be intimately shaped by Venezuela's contradictory relationship with oil In doing so he brings a vital perspective to contemporary debates about energy transitions by proposing a new way of thinking about the political and moral economies of natural resources in postcolonial settings

The "Alexandreis" of Walter of Châtillon, 2015-11-10 Written sometime in the 1170s Walter of Chatillon's Latin epic on the life of Alexander the Great loomed as large on literary horizons as the works on Jean de Meun Dante or Boccaccio Within a few decades of its composition the poem had become a standard text of the literary curriculum Virtually all authors of the thirteenth through fifteenth centuries knew the poem And an extraordinary two hundred surviving manuscripts elaborately annotated attest both to the popularity of the Alexandreis and to the care with which it was read by its medieval audience

The Truth Within Gavin Flood, 2013-10-25 The idea that there is a truth within the person linked to the discovery of a deeper more fundamental more authentic self has been a common theme in many religions throughout history and an idea that is still with us today This inwardness or interiority unique to me as an essential feature of who I am has been an aspect of culture and even a defining characteristic of human being an authentic private sphere to which we can retreat that is beyond the conflicts of the outer world This inner world becomes more real than the outer which is seen as but a pale reflection Remarkably the image of the truth within is found across cultures and this book presents an account of this idea in the pre modern history of Christianity Hinduism and Buddhism Furthermore in theistic religions Christianity and some forms of Hinduism the truth within is conflated with the idea of God within and in all cases this inner truth is thought to be not only the heart of the person but also the heart of the universe itself Gavin Flood examines the metaphor of inwardness and the idea of truth within along with the methods developed in religions to attain it such as prayer and meditation These views of inwardness that link the self to cosmology can be contrasted with a modern understanding of the person In examining the truth within in Christianity Hinduism and Buddhism Flood offers a hermeneutical phenomenology of inwardness and a defence of comparative religion
