Pseira VIII Philip P. Betancourt, Costis Davaras, Richard Hope Simpson, 2004-10-30 Richard B Seager excavated the Minoan town and cemetery at Pseira in 1906 1907 but the work was not fully published The Temple University excavations 1985 1994 under the direction of Philip P Betancourt and Costis Davaras conducted an intensive surface survey of the island The results of the survey on the small island off the northeast coast of Crete are published in two volumes Pseira VIII presents the results from the corollary studies that accompany the surface survey Pseira IX presents the results from the intensive surface survey Ceramics of the Indigenous Cultures of South America Michael D. Glascock, Hector Neff, Vaughn J. Kevin, 2019-03-15 This cohesive edited volume showcases data collected from more than seven thousand ceramic artifacts including pottery figurines clay pipes and other objects from sites across South America Covering a time span from 900 BC to AD 1500 the essays by leading archaeologists working in South America illustrate the diversity of ceramic provenance investigations taking place in seven different countries An introductory chapter provides a background for interpreting compositional data and a final chapter offers a review of the individual projects Students scholars and researchers in archaeological study on the interactions between the indigenous peoples of South America and studies of their ceramics will find this volume an invaluable reference Mediterranean Archaeologies of Insularity in an Age of Globalization Anna Kouremenos, Jody Michael Gordon, 2020-06-30 Recently complex interpretations of socio cultural change in the ancient Mediterranean world have emerged that challenge earlier models Influenced by today's hyper connected age scholars no longer perceive the Mediterranean as a static place where Greco Roman culture was dominant but rather see it as a dynamic and connected sea where fragmentation and uncertainty along with mobility and networking were the norm Hence a current theoretical approach to studying ancient culture has been that of globalization Certain eras of Mediterranean history e.g. the Roman empire known for their increased connectivity have thus been analyzed from a globalized perspective that examines rhizomal networking cultural diversity and multiple processes of social change Archaeology has proven a useful discipline for investigating ancient globalization because of its recent focus on how identity is expressed through material culture negotiated between both local and global influences when levels of connectivity are altered One form of identity that has been inadequately explored in relation to globalization theory is insularity Insularity or the socially recognized differences expressed by people living on islands is a form of self identification created within a particular space and time Insularity as a unique social identity affected by global forces should be viewed as an important research paradigm for archaeologies concerned with re-examining cultural change The purpose of this volume is to explore how comparative archaeologies of insularity can contribute to discourse on ancient Mediterranean globalization The volume's theme stems from a colloquium session that was chaired by the volume's co-editors at the Annual Meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America in January 2017 Given the current state of the field for globalization studies in Mediterranean archaeology this volume aims to bring together for the first time archaeologists working on different islands and a range of material culture types to examine diachronically how Mediterranean insularities changed during eras when connectivity increased such as the Late Bronze Age the era of Greek and Phoenician colonization the Classical period and during the High and Late Roman imperial eras Each chapter aims to situate a specific island or island group within the context of the globalizing forces and networks that conditioned a particular period and utilizes archaeological material to reveal how islanders shaped their insular identities or notions of insularity at the nexus of local and global influences

Crafting in the World Clare Burke, Suzanne M. Spencer-Wood, 2018-11-09 This volume expands understandings of crafting practices which in the past was the major relational interaction between the social agency of materials technology and people in co creating an emergent ever changing world The chapters discuss different ways that crafting in the present is useful in understanding crafting experiences and methods in the past including experiments to reproduce ancient excavated objects historical accounts of crafting methods and experiences craft revivals and teaching historical crafts at museums and schools Crafting in the World is unique in the diversity of its theoretical and multidisciplinary approaches to researching crafting not just as a set of techniques for producing functional objects but as social practices and technical choices embodying cultural ideas knowledge and multiple interwoven social networks Crafting expresses and constitutes mental schemas identities ideologies and cultures The multiple meanings and significances of crafting are explored from a great variety of disciplinary perspectives including anthropology archaeology sociology education psychology women's studies and ethnic studies This book provides a deep temporal range and a global geographical scope with case studies ranging from Europe Africa and Asia to the Americas and a global internet website for selling home crafted items

The Bronze Age Begins Philip P. Betancourt, 2008-08-26 This book focuses on economic and social changes particularly during the opening phase of the Minoan civilization on the island of Crete New developments in ceramics that reached Crete at the end of the Neolithic period greatly contributed to the creation of economic technological social and religious advancements we call the Early Bronze Age The arguments are two fold a detailed explanation of the ceramics we call Early Minoan I and the differences that set it apart from its predecessors and an explanation of how these new and highly superior containers changed the storage transport and accumulation of a new form of wealth consisting primarily of processed agricultural and animal products like wine olive oil and various foods preserved in wine vinegar honey and other liquids The increased stability and security provided by an improved ability to store food from one year to the next would have a profound effect on the society

The Chrysokamino Metallurgy Workshop and Its Territory Philip P. Betancourt, 2006 This detailed report describes archaeological fieldwork conducted between 1995 and 1997 in rural northeast Crete Excavations were made in two locations a metallurgy workshop abandoned in EM III and a nearby rural habitation site perhaps a farmhouse used until LM III An intensive survey of the vicinity revealed other activities in the area from the Early Neolithic onwards and placed the sites in a micro regional context A publication of the Minoan farmhouse will appear subsequently but this volume stands on its own as both an overview of the project and as a detailed study of the copper smelting workshop Pseira IX Philip P.

Betancourt, Costis Davaras, Richard Hope Simpson, 2005-06-30 Richard B Seager excavated the Minoan town and cemetery at Pseira in 1906 1907 but the work was not fully published The Temple University excavations 1985 1994 under the direction of Philip P Betancourt and Costis Davaras conducted an intensive surface survey of the island The results of the survey on the small island off the northeast coast of Crete are published in two volumes Pseira VIII presents the results from the corollary studies that accompany the surface survey Pseira IX presents the results from the intensive surface survey Pseira X Philip P.

Betancourt, 2009-12-31 This book is the tenth volume in the series of excavation reports about the harbor town of Pseira which is located on the island of the same name just off the northeast coast of Crete The book focuses on the excavation and interpretation of the architecture and material culture in Block AF This southern group of buildings is one of the most important areas in the settlement because of its long succession of building phases Block AF provides the fullest sequence of building phases from any one area at Pseira with habitation extending from before MM II to LM III It has examples of complex architectural details including a pillar crypt elaborate upstairs floors a well preserved U shaped staircase and a well designed kitchen all of which contribute significantly to our knowledge of East Cretan building practices In addition to domestic pottery the houses furnish examples of stone tools stone vessels loom weights inscriptions in Linear A cult objects animal bones marine shells and a wide range of material recovered from water sieving This latter category with burned grain fish bones shells and other categories of materials fills many gaps in our knowledge of Pseiran life Ancient Glass Julian

Henderson, 2013-02-11 A detailed interdisciplinary exploration of ancient glass examining why and how glass was invented and various contexts of its subsequent development and use The Dams and Water Management Systems of Minoan Pseira

Philip P. Betancourt, 2012-12-31 Excavations at the Bronze Age seaport on Pseira Island uncovered the remains of sophisticated water retention systems that included the addition of retaining walls to prevent erosion massive dams with associated reservoirs and small check dams to ravines that reached over one hundred meters in length in order to control water runoff and make it available for human use Agriculture was one of the cornerstones of the Bronze Age Cretan economy and it is no surprise that the ancient inhabitants of the island went to great lengths to control water runoff and make it available for human use Despite the application of traditional archaeological survey methods the full extent of the water management systems was not understood fully as the island's rugged topography prevented intensive and thorough survey of many places The use of a differential Global Positioning System dGPS unit provided the opportunity to take a fresh look at the evidence for water management on the island The results of this study contribute substantial amounts of new information on the little known subject of Minoan water conservation and control Bramiana Vili Apostolakou, Philip

Betancourt, Thomas Brogan, 2022-12-31 The Minoan site at Bramiana in southeastern Crete provides evidence for a Bronze Age economy based on trade agriculture and craftwork This publication uses a new system of organizing the pottery by petrography sorting it by materials and workshop practices revealing a trade network of cooking pots and other clay vessels and their contents Change and Transition on Crete: Interpreting the Evidence from the Hellenistic through to the Early Byzantine Period Jane Francis, Michael J Curtis, 2023-02-09

The theme of this volume presented in honour of G W M Harrison whose academic contributions have enriched our perspective of Roman Crete is change and transition a topic that challenges some of the earlier approaches to Hellenistic and Roman Crete and which presents a different perspective on historical events and archaeological evidence Mochlos IIB R. Angus K. Smith, 2010-12-31

Excavations carried out at two Late Minoan III sites at Mochlos in eastern Crete yielded a pottery assemblage from 31 tombs and 11 houses which are cataloged discussed and illustrated together with petrographic analyses The cemetery remains mirror the settlement remains and the conclusions discuss how the two sites reflect each other Rarely in Crete are a settlement and its cemetery both preserved and it is extremely fortunate to be able to document both in a series of scientific excavation reports Mochlos vols IIA IIC

Ceramics, Cuisine and Culture Michela Spataro, Alexandra Villing, 2015-10-31 The 23 papers presented here are the product of the interdisciplinary exchange of ideas and approaches to the study of kitchen pottery between archaeologists material scientists historians and ethnoarchaeologists They aim to set a vital but long neglected category of evidence in its wider social political and economic contexts Structured around main themes concerning technical aspects of pottery production cooking as socioeconomic practice and changing tastes culinary identities and cross cultural encounters a range of social economic and technological models are discussed on the basis of insights gained from the study of kitchen pottery production use and evolution Much discussion and work in the last decade has focussed on technical and social aspects of coarse ware and in particular kitchen ware The chapters in this volume contribute to this debate moving kitchen pottery beyond the Binfordian technomic category and embracing a wider view linking processualism ceramic ecology behavioral schools and ethnoarchaeology to research on historical developments and cultural transformations covering a broad geographical area of the Mediterranean region and spanning a long chronological sequence Krinoi kai Limenes Philip

P. Betancourt, Michael C. Nelson, Hector Williams, 2007-12-31 Joseph and Maria Shaw received the Archaeological Institute of America's Gold Medal for a lifetime of outstanding achievement in January of 2006 This volume is a collection of the papers presented at the Gold Medal Colloquium held in their honor during the 2006 Annual Meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America in Montreal Quebec Additional articles have also been written for this volume Many of the articles pertain to different aspects of Aegean Bronze Age architecture harbors frescoes and trade which are all keen interests of the Shaws

Prehistoric Crete Joanne M. Murphy, 2011-06-15 Since the inception of Minoan archaeology studies pertaining to tombs and tomb deposits have played seminal roles in our understanding of Minoan culture and the reconstruction of Bronze Age society For several geographical areas and chronological periods of Cretan history tombs are the most abundant source of data Each author in this volume takes a clear and distinct approach to the data including some that emphasize political geography on multi regional and multi scalar levels some that examine the commemoration of the dead and of the community for legitimizing purposes but also for maintaining and or creating elite positions in social systems and others that underline the overlap between mortuary rituals and religion The aim of this volume is not to present all tombs in all periods on Crete comprehensively but the breadth of these papers is intended generate a discourse not just among archaeologists working in different areas and time periods on Crete but also among archaeologists in Greece and a broader anthropological audience

Philistor Philip P. Betancourt, Eleni Mantzourani, 2012-09-30 Contributions by 37 scholars are brought together here to create a volume in honor of the long and fruitful career of Costis Davaras former Ephor of Crete and Professor Emeritus of Minoan Archaeology at the University of Athens Articles pertain to Bronze Age Crete and include mortuary studies experimental archaeology numerous artifactual studies and discussions on the greater Minoan civilization
